THOMSON REUTERS' BOOK CITATION INDEX

We are one of the first publishers to agree to include book titles in the new Thomson Reuters' Book Citation Index. Historically only leading journals and conference proceedings have been included in the citation index which is accessed through the Thomson Reuters' Web of Knowledge research platform by 20 million users across 3,800 research institutions in 90 countries. We expect that this initiative will increase the visibility of Elgar books and help to ensure that citations to your work in our books are fully recognised.

We welcome our authors to contact their commissioning editor for more information.

KEY TITLE

Criminal Justice in China

An Empirical Inquiry

Mike McConville,
The Chinese University of Hong Kong

'Criminal Justice in China is the most comprehensive work to date on the functioning of China's criminal justice system. This book is essential reading for anyone who wants to understand any aspect of the system. There are important insights on virtually every page, including in depth study of the role of police, procuracy, courts, and defense lawyers. The book will be of value to anyone interested in governance in China.'

– Benjamin L. Liebman, Columbia Law School,
New York, US

This path-breaking book, based upon the largest and most systematic empirical inquiry ever undertaken in China, analyses the extent to which changes to the formal legal structure have resulted in changes to the law in practice.

With contributions from: Satnam Choongh, Pinky Choy Dick Wan, Eric Chui Wing Hong, Ian Dobinson and Carol Jones

Chinese Intellectual Property and Technology Laws

NEW

Edited by Rohan Kariyawasam, Cardiff
University, UK and Peking University, China with Helen Hui

'The pioneering studies in this book examine the fundamental role of intellectual property and technology laws as China is moving from "made in China" to "created in China". This book also helps us to understand about the interplay between China's intellectual property protection system and the potential for transition of China's economy, and provides numerous means to deal with the legislative difficulties in China's innovation-oriented strategy.'

Copyright and the Public Interest in China

NEW

Guan H. Tang, Shanghai University of Finance and Economics, China

'Guan Hong Tang's book offers a fresh, insightful and scholarly treatment of the relationship between the law of copyright and the public interest in China. Copyright legislation in China is a novelty, dating from 1990, and Dr Tang provides a vivid overview of the historical and cultural tensions between traditional Chinese Confucianism and the very concept of copyright, tensions which more recent legislation and case law seek to address.'

Human Rights in Asia

Edited by
Thomas W.D. Davis and
Brian Galligan, University of Melbourne, Australia

'Asia – in all its robust variety – is a hotbed of human rights controversy and conflict. It also harbours great potential and promise to improve the standards of human rights enjoyed by its peoples. This tremendously readable and insightful collection of essays shirks neither perspective, employing an impressive array of political, economic, cultural and legal arguments as to how to exploit the good and counteract the bad.'

Imitation to Innovation in China

The Role of Patents in Biotechnology and Pharmaceutical Industries

Yahong Li, University of Hong Kong

'Yahong Li's pioneering study, Imitation to Innovation in China, breaks new ground in closely examining the extent to which the Chinese government's patent policies and patent activity by Chinese firms are influencing China's coming transformation from an imitation-oriented country to an innovation-oriented one. Her combination of theoretical and empirical approaches exploring the links between public policy, patenting activity and technological innovation (commercialization) is an important contribution to development studies, not just for China but for other newly innovative countries as well.'

The Evolution of Law Reform in China: An Uncertain Path

Edited by Stanley B. Lubman, University of California, Berkeley, US

This timely collection presents articles written by Chinese and Western authors on law reform in the People's Republic of China from its beginning in 1978 until the present day. The first part presents differing perspectives on the history of law reform. Separate sections are devoted to core institutions: the Constitution, the legislature, administrative law, courts, criminal process, the legal profession, extra-judicial dispute resolution and citizen petitions. Alongside an original introduction the book will be of interest to readers with specialized interests in Chinese law but also to anyone interested in China's governance.

28 articles, dating from 1999 to 2011

Contributors include: J. Chen, W. Chen, W. Chenguang, D. Clarke, C. Dingjian, M. Gallagher, F. Hualing, B. Liebman, K. O'Brien, R. Peerenboom, H. Xin

Community and the Law

A Critical Reassessment of American Liberalism and Japanese Modernity

Takao Tanase, Chuo University Law School, Japan

Translated and edited by Luke Nottage, University of Sydney and Leon Wolff, Bond University, Australia

'Takao Tanase seamlessly combines sociological and philosophical analysis as he explores the tensions between individual legal rights and communitarian values in settings ranging from post-divorce visitation rights to tort liability, lawyer-client relationships, and rising litigation rates. Contrasting Japan with the individualistic thrust of American law, Tanase stresses the importance of building legal processes that encourage stronger social and communal bonds. Students of law and society on all continents will find rich food for thought in this intellectually bold and intriguing volume.'

Trafficking and Human Rights

European and Asia-Pacific Perspectives

Edited by Leslie Holmes, University of Melbourne, Australia, Graduate School for Social Research, Warsaw, Poland and University of Bologna, Italy

Human trafficking is widely considered to be the fastest growing branch of trafficking. It has moved rapidly up the agenda of states and international organisations since the early-1990s, not only because of this growth, but also as its implications for security and human rights have become clearer. This fascinating study by European and Australian specialists provides original research findings on human trafficking, with particular reference to Europe, South-East Asia and Australia. A major focus is on how many states and organisations act in ways that undermine trafficking victims' rights.

China's Creative Industries

Copyright, Social Network Markets and the Business of Culture in a Digital Age

Lucy Montgomery, Queensland University of Technology, Australia

'Lucy Montgomery brings together thought-provoking insights into China's cultural and creative sectors, notably the shift from official culture to entrepreneurial consumers, the relative unimportance of copyright compared to Western economies, and the need for us to understand evolutionary economics. The result is a new model of China's online networks as a public source of cultural products. Her book should be required reading everywhere that wants to understand what is happening in China.'

Managing Cultural Diversity in Asia

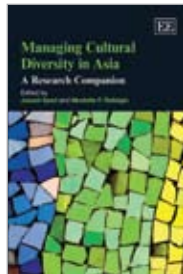

A Research Companion

Edited by Jawad Syed, University of Kent and Mustafa F. Özbilgin, Brunel University, UK

This Companion provides an authoritative overview of how cultural diversity is managed in Asia. Although the Asian context appears at first sight to be irreconcilably divergent in terms of diversity management approaches, the contributing authors seek to explore thematic and geographical demarcations of the notions of cultural diversity and equality at work.

China and the Multinationals NEW

International Business and the Entry of China into the Global Economy

Edited by Robert Pearce, University of Reading, UK

This original and important book explores how the interaction between China and multinational enterprises (MNEs) has the potential to affect the future of the Chinese economy, the global economy, and international business. It examines the interaction of two of the most important forces affecting the development of the global economy in recent decades – namely the opening and massive growth of the Chinese economy, and secondly the rise in foreign direct investment per se and the consequent strategic restructuring of major MNEs.

The Rise NEW PB of Asia

The 'Flying-Geese' Theory of Tandem Growth and Regional Agglomeration

Terutomu Ozawa, Colorado State University and Columbia Business School, US

'... Ozawa's new book, The Rise of Asia, is a blast of fresh air. . . Turning from the production or real economy to the financial or money economy. . . Ozawa [also] proposes an innovative stages theory of the balance of payments, linked to the stages of the production economy. . . The book, moreover, not only analyzes big trends and big policy issues but does so in remarkably lucid and graceful prose, accessible to undergraduates and the general reader.'

The Determinants of Chinese Outward Direct Investment

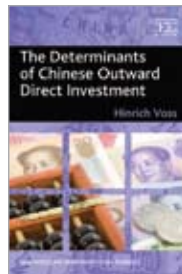

Hinrich Voss, University of Leeds, UK

'This book provides an excellent introduction to the internationalization of Chinese firms. It is guided by conventional international business theory, but not a prisoner of it. It considers hard economic variables as well as soft institutional variables. The result is a book with original and interesting findings that illustrates at once the unique aspects of Chinese multinationals and the commonalities they share with multinationals from other countries. Scholars interested in the internationalization of emerging-market firms will find this book a rich read.'

Entrepreneurship Education in Asia NEW

Edited by Hugh Thomas, The Chinese University of Hong Kong and Donna Kelley, Babson College, US

The East Asian entrepreneurship revolution was achieved largely without a formal system of entrepreneurship education, yet as their societies develop, educators in East Asia are increasingly tasked to inspire and equip the entrepreneurs of the future. This book discusses their challenge, their record to date and specific programs that are being implemented. Augmented by surveys conducted by the World Economic Forum and the Global Entrepreneurship Monitor, this book provides valuable guidelines to solve the entrepreneurship educator's dilemma.

Competitiveness of the ASEAN Countries

Corporate and Regulatory Drivers

Edited by Philippe Gugler, University of Fribourg, Switzerland and Julien Chaisse, Chinese University of Hong Kong

In an age of increased necessity for competitiveness of nations and at a time when the world economy is facing recession, this book explores the possible trajectory of ASEAN – arguably one of the most dynamic areas in the world – as a regional economic and political bloc. The expert contributors address the industrial competitiveness of ASEAN and analyse the role of MNEs against the background of the challenges of integration. They illustrate that regional integration will only be a success if ASEAN's linkages are broadened with global partners through negotiations of Free Trade Agreements.

The US–China Trade Dispute NEW

Facts, Figures and Myths

Imad Moosa, RMIT University, Australia

Dealing with a topic that has attracted significant media attention, this highly accessible book provides a detailed analysis of the trade dispute between China and the US. While the Americans accuse China of damaging their economy, the Chinese claim their actions are legitimate, and that the US have no right to comment on the running of the Chinese economy. Imad Moosa addresses contentious issues including: whether the Chinese currency is undervalued, whether the undervaluation of the yuan – should it exist – is the cause of the US trade deficit with China (hence revaluation being a justifiable cure) and whether Chinese economic policies are immoral and illegal according to IMF and WTO rules.

Asian Monetary Integration NEW

Coping with a New Monetary Order
After the Global Crisis

Woosik Moon and Yeongseop Rhee, Seoul
National University, South Korea

Many ideas, of varying scope, for East Asian monetary and financial cooperation have been proposed within and outside of the region since the financial crisis in Asia. Despite such an emergence in interests however, there are few studies addressing the issue from a comprehensive perspective. This insightful book examines the history, the conditions, and the current efforts of monetary integration in Asia and explores some possible future paths, highlighting the roles and perspectives of East Asian countries in the integration process.

Managing Macroeconomic Policies for Sustainable Growth NEW

John Asafu-Adjaye and Renuka Mahadevan,
The University of Queensland, Australia

'These experienced economists use CGE modelling to analyse the consequences of significant contemporary economic and environmental policies in several Asia-Pacific countries and in Africa. This has not been done previously for several of the economies concerned. This path-breaking, economy-wide study assesses policies relating to agricultural development, trade and industrial development, energy, greenhouse gases and climate change. This readable book should appeal to a wide audience, including students, policy-makers and researchers.'

Foreign Direct Investment in China NEW

Location Determinants, Investor Differences and Economic Impacts

Chunlai Chen, The Australian National University

'For readers looking for a comprehensive rigorously quantitative analysis of foreign direct investment (FDI) in China, there is no better work than Chunlai Chen's Foreign Direct Investment in China. In the book he analyzes a wide range of issues ranging from the contribution of FDI to China's growth to why FDI is concentrated in certain Chinese provinces and not others. Readers with an economics or statistical background will get the most out of the book, but it is accessible and informative for many others.'

Implications of the Global NEW Financial Crisis for Financial Reform and Regulation in Asia

Edited by Masahiro Kawai, Asian Development Bank Institute, Japan,

David G. Mayes, University of Auckland, University of Canterbury, New Zealand and University of Buckingham, UK and

Peter Morgan, Asian Development Bank Institute, Japan

'What are the lessons of the global financial crisis of 2007–2009 for Asia? This is a key issue for Asia today. On one hand, some observers argue that following the Asian financial crisis in 1997–98, most Asian developing countries built up strong mechanisms to guarantee financial stability. But the recent financial shocks across America and Europe show that even the best financial systems have key weaknesses. This book is a valuable guide for Asian financial policymakers of the road ahead.'

Managing Capital Flows

The Search for a Framework

Edited by Masahiro Kawai and Mario B. Lamberte, Asian Development Bank Institute, Japan

'Restrictions on hot money flows are respectable again, if only because of near zero short-term interest rates in the United States and Japan. This volume focuses mainly on Asian economies through overviews and nine specific country studies. It is an invaluable reference work on how governments use ever-changing rules governing banks as well as equity and portfolio investments to insulate their monetary systems from international hot money inflows.'

Monetary and Currency NEW Policy Management in Asia

Implications of the Global Financial Crisis

Edited by Masahiro Kawai, Peter Morgan, Asian Development Bank Institute, Tokyo and Shinji Takagi, Osaka University, Japan

This book makes concrete macroeconomic policy recommendations for Asian economies aimed at minimising the impacts of an economic and financial downturn, and setting the stage for an early return to sustainable growth. The focus is on short-term measures related to the cycle. The three main areas addressed are: monetary policy measures to achieve both macroeconomic and financial stability; exchange rate policy and foreign exchange reserve management, including the potential for regional exchange rate cooperation; and ways to ease the constraints on policy resulting from the so-called 'impossible trinity' of fixed exchange rates, open capital accounts and independent monetary policy.

China's Economic Miracle NEW

Does FDI Matter?

Sumei Tang, Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations, Canberra, Eliyathamby A. Selvanathan and
Saroja Selvanathan, Griffith University, Queensland, Australia

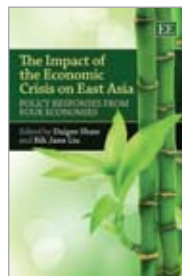

This unique book analyses FDI and its impact in China as well as making valuable contributions to the theory of FDI. The authors empirically analyse the location-specific determinants of FDI; impact of FDI on domestic investment, income distribution, consumption and tourism; the relationship between FDI inflows and income inequality; causality between FDI, domestic investment and economic growth; and causality between FDI and tourism. The study concludes that FDI plays a crucial, and positive role in the Chinese economic development of China. Rather than crowding out domestic investment, FDI is found to stimulate economic growth by complementing it.

The Impact of the Economic Crisis on East Asia

Policy Responses from Four Economies

Edited by Daigee Shaw,
Academia Sinica and
Bih Jane Liu, Chung-Hua
Institution for Economic Research, Taiwan

Written by a distinguished group of Asian social scientists, this study summarises and synthesizes the economic impacts of the crisis on individual countries and their policy response since 2008, and in particular carefully scrutinises the immediate and remote causes of the crisis. It not only offers an assessment of its impacts, and identifies specific country measures that can be undertaken to stabilise the situation, but also looks at the crisis from three important economic perspectives: that of a healthy fiscal system, international trade, and the energy market.

Islamic Capitalism and Finance

Origins, Evolution and the Future

Murat Çizakça, INCEIF, the Global University of Islamic Finance, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

This illuminating and thought-provoking book questions whether classical Islamic capitalism, which has served Muslims so well for centuries, can provide a viable alternative world economic system. In the current recession – the worst since 1929 – this is surely a provocative question. But if Islamic capitalism is to emerge as a viable alternative, its nature and systems must be well understood.

China's Economy in the Post-WTO Environment

Stock Markets, FDI and Challenges of Sustainability

Edited by Lilai Xu, RMIT University, Australia

The book explores the implications of both the extension of the market into key parts of the Chinese economy and the integration of China into the global economy. The main focus of the book is on the role and nature of China's financial system and its ability to transform enterprise and household behaviour and the performance of investment finance, notably in the context of a two-way flow of foreign direct investment. All the extensive chapters highlight the issue of sustainability – some see the incompleteness of market reform as a problem; others are more willing to accept a pragmatic blending of the operation of the free market and government intervention.

Institutional Variety in East Asia

Formal and Informal Patterns of Coordination

Edited by Werner Pascha, University of Duisburg-Essen, Cornelia Storz, Goethe University of Frankfurt and Markus Taube, University of Duisburg-Essen, Germany

This illuminating book broadly addresses the emerging field of 'diversity of capitalism' from a comparative institutional approach. It explores the varied patterns for achieving coordination in different economic systems, applying them specifically to China, Japan and South Korea. These countries are of particular interest due to the fact that they are often considered to have developed their own peculiar blend of models of capitalism.

An Economic History of Modern China

Joseph C.H. Chai, Research Grants Council, Hong Kong, China

'Joseph Chai places the recent phase of China's spectacular economic growth in its historical context in his well researched, interesting and accessible overview of the economic history of China. Because no similar up-to-date book is available in English, English readers will find this book particularly welcome. Valuable attributes of his exposition include analyses of various economic puzzles (for example, why did China, which was once the world's economic leader, falter, suffer economic retardation, fall behind Europe and begin its economic resurgence later than Japan) and his thoughtful considerations of the prospects for China's future economic growth. This book is highly recommended.'

Shareholding System Reform in China

Privatizing by Groping for Stones

Shu-Yun Ma, The Chinese University of Hong Kong

Since the 1980s, there has been a global wave of transfer of state assets to private hands. China is a relatively late participant of this worldwide trend, yet, in the last decade it has emerged as one of the largest privatising countries. Shu-Yun Ma argues that China's privatisation is not based on any grand blueprint; rather, it is privatisation by 'groping for stones to cross the river', a well-known metaphor often attributed to Deng Xiaoping, meaning that the reform simply proceeds on a trial-and-error basis without being guided by any theory.

International Fragmentation of Production

The Impact of Outsourcing on the Japanese Economy

Nobuaki Yamashita, La
Trobe University, Australia

'Japanese firms are major players in East Asian production supply chains, by outsourcing labour-intensive parts of the production process to nearby low-wage economies (production fragmentation). This excellent empirical study first uses new databases to contrast fragmentation trade pattern and labour market adjustment between Japanese and US firms. It finds that outsourcing leads to increases in the skill of Japanese manufacturing workers and, more importantly, that it did not hurt overall Japanese employment and possibly even helped. This is an important contribution to our understanding of East Asian regional production networks and Japan's trade patterns.'

Edited by Akifumi Kuchiki, Nihon University and

This lucid and informative book analyzes the problem of clusters in transition through studies of agglomerations at different stages of development in various East Asian countries. The contributors reconsider industrial cluster policy within a more dynamic and long-term framework, and explore how regional transformations can bring new insights to the theory of agglomeration and innovation. By identifying the factors and policies to promote upgrading, the authors establish the theoretical and policy basis for transforming industrial clusters from production-oriented to innovation-oriented agglomerations.

Input Trade and Production Networks in East Asia

Edited by Daisuke Hiratsuka and Yoko Uchida,
JETRO, Japan

'Spatial fragmentation of production is linked with two great waves of unbundling. The first one was a century and a half ago when the spatial location of production of goods was separated from their consumption. We live in the age of a second unbundling where certain operations within the same factory can be fragmented and performed elsewhere. There is trade in certain tasks and components which was made possible by cheaper and better communication and transport. This book considers production networks in East Asia, which is and will continue to be the most dynamic economic region in the decades to come.'

Technological NEW Entrepreneurship in China

How Does it Work?

Edited by Claudio Petti, University of Salento, Italy

Bringing technologies to the market, eventually creating profits, high-qualified jobs and industrial upgrading is one of the privileged means of China's transition towards a new sustainable growth model based on innovation. A lot is known about the mechanisms of technological entrepreneurship. But how does this happen in China? Who is doing what? Is there something like a Chinese way to technological entrepreneurship? This insightful book provides readers with a closer look at these issues and to help build their own view through a number of case studies discussed from the perspectives of both Chinese and international contributors.

Shaping China's Innovation Future

University Technology Transfer in Transition

John L. Orcutt, University of New Hampshire School of Law – Franklin Pierce Center for Intellectual Property, US and Hong Shen, Longan Law Firm, Beijing, China

Shaping China's Innovation Future employs a thorough analysis of a combination of factors including: the role of law and China's legal system; economic theory and the development of China's economy; China's educational, intellectual property, and financial systems; China's innovation capacity; and Chinese culture. Though the recommendations on how to improve China's technology commercialisation system are unique to China, the scope of the research makes the conclusions found here applicable to other countries facing similar challenges.

Small Country Innovation Systems

Globalization, Change and Policy in Asia and Europe

Edited by Charles Edquist, Lund University and the late

'What are the challenges that small countries face concerning innovation and what are the effects of globalization on their innovation systems? In this very interesting, rich and timely book, Edquist and Hommen compare ten different small national innovation systems from the Asia Pacific and Northern Europe that are rather advanced in their development. The answers that the authors give are convincing and relate not only to the unique characteristics of each national system that shapes innovative activity, but also to some commonalities that exist across these countries.'

New Welfare States in East Asia

Global Challenges and Restructuring

Edited by Gyu-Jin Hwang, University of Sydney, Australia

The fast changing economic climate is creating substantial pressure for welfare state restructuring worldwide. Yet the discussion regarding challenges faced and the responses required has been confined to the 'standard welfare states' in the West. This book examines whether these challenges also apply to the countries in the East, whether these countries have generated different responses to their Western counterparts, and whether they have undergone a process of regime transformation while responding to these pressures.

Understanding China's International Relations NEW

Chengxin Pan, Deakin University, Australia

Much has been said and written on the rise of China, but thus far little attention has been paid to 'China's rise literature' itself. This important book examines how Western representation of China's rise is conditioned on, and constitutive of, Western self-imagination. Furthermore, Chengxin Pan expertly illustrates how this body of China knowledge, intimately linked to the political economy of fears and fantasies, informs and complicates foreign policy practice in Sino-Western relations.

Public Governance in Asia and the Limits of Electoral Democracy

Edited by Brian Bridges
and Lok Sang Ho, Lingnan
University, Hong Kong

'The global financial crisis has demonstrated that good governance is not guaranteed by democracy; it has also shown that the capacity of electoral democracies to manage major issues of public policy has varied widely. This excellent comparative collection probes these questions through analysis of ten political systems in Asia, all of which have experienced major changes in recent years. By focussing on the concept of public governance as the key to preventing abuses of power and promoting the public interest, Bridges, Ho and their co-authors have moved the debate on Asian democratization beyond the narrow focus on electoral machinery to the wider issue of governance as the principal means to serve the public good.'

The Economics of East Asian Integration

A Comprehensive Introduction to Regional Issues

Edited by Masahisa Fujita, Research Institute of Economy, Trade and Industry, Konan University and Kyoto University, Ikuo Kuroiwa and Satoru Kumagai, IDE-JETRO, Japan

This volume is intended to be the most comprehensive textbook on economic integration in East Asia. It introduces the reader to various issues related to the topic such as institutional building of FTAs; production networks and the location choice of MNEs; R&D and innovation; infrastructure development and transport costs; international migration and service trade; monetary integration; regional disparity and poverty. It also deals with critical energy, environmental and agricultural concerns. Each chapter contains ample data and rigorous analyses, complemented by illustrative box articles.

The Asia-Pacific, Regionalism and the Global System NEW

Edited by Christopher M. Dent and Jorn Dosch, University of Leeds, UK

This volume sheds critical light on how the Asia-Pacific region is shaping the world. It explores the key issues of regional co-operation, integration and international affairs within and across the Asia-Pacific, and questions how significant developments are impacting on the global system, in particular on emerging forms of global governance. Uniquely, discussion is not limited to East Asia but also takes Latin America prominently into the equation.

Regionalism, Economic Integration and Security in Asia

A Political Economy Approach

Edited by Jehoon Park, University of Incheon, South Korea, T.J. Pempel, University of California, Berkeley, US and Heungchong Kim, Korea Institute for International Economic Policy, South Korea

The prospects and value of economic integration and regionalism in Asia are increasingly evident in what could turn out to be 'the Asian Century'. It is within this context that this important book explores the critical economic issues, security concerns and political themes pertinent to Asia in general, and to East Asia in particular.

The Asian Mediterranean

Port Cities and Trading Networks in China, Japan and Southeast Asia, 13th–21st Century

François Gipouloux, Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS), France

'François Gipouloux has written a vast and comprehensive history of the Asian economic system. In the tradition of Braudel, he paints a picture that is detailed, full of insight, and essentially very long term. On the basis of an analysis of the old Mediterranean and Hanseatic economic networks, he surveys the pre-modern Asian system, bringing it up to date with studies of Yokohama, Hong Kong, Singapore and other Asian hubs. The culmination of many years' work, Gipouloux throws light on a new China – a China no longer land based and inward looking but dependent on, and a power in, a maritime world.'

Gateways to Globalisation NEW

Asia's International Trading and Finance Centres

Edited by François Gipouloux, Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS), France

'Gateways to Globalisation cogently demonstrates that Hong Kong, Singapore, Beijing, Shanghai, and Tokyo operate as gateways to Asia and as linchpins for Asia to the global economy. The authors' theoretical frameworks and original empirical research support provocative findings that challenge conventional thinking: Tokyo may decline as a global city. As Beijing and Shanghai ride China's rapid growth they face uncertainty about its future openness to the global economy. Vibrant Hong Kong and Singapore confront challenges from other rising centers.'

Reshaping Regional Policy

Edited by

Harry W. Richardson,
University of Southern California,
Chang-Hee Christine Bae,
University of Washington,
Seattle, US and
Sang-Chuel Choe,
Presidential Committee on Regional Development, South Korea

Originally initiated by the Presidential Committee on Regional Development in South Korea, this wide-ranging volume investigates the new directions in regional development policy taking shape around the world. In addition to contributions with individual emphasis on regional policy in Korea, the book compares, contrasts and extends regional policy thought in the European Union and other Asian countries.

Urban Poverty in China

Fulong Wu, Chris Webster, Cardiff University, UK, Shenjing He, Sun Yat-Sen University and Yuting Liu, South China University of Technology, China

'Market reform has brought new forms of poverty to urban China, even while the standard of living of most urban residents has greatly improved. This research uses interviews with people in six cities to document their situation and to show how poverty is rooted in the failure of support systems in their neighborhoods and communities. It offers a stark evaluation of a system of inequalities that is only beginning to be addressed by state policy.'

The Great Migration

Rural–Urban Migration in China and Indonesia

Edited by Xin Meng and Chris Manning, Australian National University with Li Shi, Beijing Normal University, China and Tadjuddin Noer Effendi, Gadjah Mada University, Indonesia

'After a quarter century of double-digit growth, 135 million rural migrants were living in China's cities by 2007. This massive migration exceeds anything else recorded in human history. Based on new survey data, The Great Migration explores cause and effect while comparing China's restrictive with Indonesia's liberal migration policies. The result is the best book on rural–urban migration thus far.'

Green Taxation in East Asia

Edited by
Richard Cullen, The University of Hong Kong,
Jefferson VanderWolk, The Chinese University of Hong Kong and Yan Xu, The University of Hong Kong

'The broad sweep of "green taxation" – pollution, carbon, resource and land taxes, and tax incentives for environmental goals – makes it complex to analyse. Green Taxation in East Asia is a timely and valuable comparative contribution to an expanding literature. Its scholarly country studies show how green taxes aim to modify behaviour, correct externalities, regulate, or raise revenue. As environmental policy and tax policy move closer together, green taxes become feasible, but are always, as the editors say, "shaped by local political, economic and social circumstances".'

Climate Change and Growth in Asia

Edited by
Moazzem Hossain and Eliyathamby Selvanathan,
Griffith University, Australia

Climate Change and Growth in Asia is a comprehensive analysis of the major issues of climate change and global warming and their possible impacts on the growth of major Asian economies. The book addresses the climate change crisis in Asia within the context of three major challenges to growth: population, poverty and greenhouse gas emissions.

The contributors of the book argue that, like globalisation, the effects of climate change are all-encompassing and recognise no national boundaries.

Governing International NEW Rivers

Polycentric Politics in the Mekong and the Rhine

Tun Myint, Carleton College, US

This important book employs the theory of polycentricity as an analytical concept to explain the multilayered international environmental governance of river basins. It introduces a new methodological framework to deconstruct and investigate the dynamics of citizens, states and non-state actors in world politics via the context of river basin governance. The methodology is attested through in-depth field-based case studies, illustrating how local citizens and industries in the Mekong and Rhine river basins participate in transnational environmental governance at both local and international levels. This book offers both a methodology and theory to conceive polycentricity of world politics as a major intellectual milestone in theorizing world politics.

Making Capitalism in Rural China

NEW

Michael Webber, The University of Melbourne, Australia

This stimulating and challenging book explores the duplicitous nature of development in China. On the positive side, it brings longer and healthier lives; fewer children dead before they are five years old; more comfort and security from famine and disaster; more education; more communication; more travel; less war. But from another, darker perspective, development brings violence to some people – those who are in the way of the new things, those who cannot adapt to the new ways – and it threatens old knowledges, habits and societies as it disrupts old power structures.

China's Economic Development

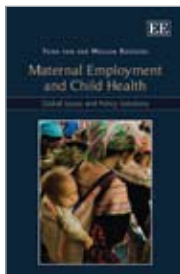

NEW

Institutions, Growth and Imbalances

Lu Ming, Zhao Chen, Yongqin Wang, Yan Zhang, Yuan Zhang and Changyuan Luo, Fudan University, China

China's Economic Development provides a framework with which to analyse the development of the modern Chinese economy. Three major factors are analysed in depth herein: economic decentralisation and political centralisation; the urban–rural divide; and relational society. While contemporary China has obviously made great economic strides, it can be seen that a wide variety of problems are accumulating over time. The work also highlights that after three decades of high economic growth, China is now facing great challenges of sustainable growth and the institutions of China's economy have reached a critical period.

KEY TITLE

Why Poverty Persists

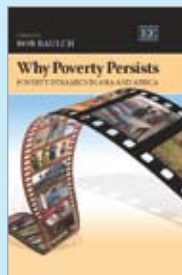

Poverty Dynamics in Asia and Africa

Edited by Bob Baulch, Chronic Poverty Research Centre

'At the beginning of the 2000–2010 decade, Bob Baulch (with John Hoddinott) was setting the micro-econometric agenda on poverty dynamics and chronic poverty and producing work that "non-economists" had to read if they wanted to conduct serious research on these issues. In this volume – through his analytical excellence, the pursuit and methodological rigour, extraordinary energy, and his ability to lead such a distinguished network of colleagues – Bob Baulch has set the research agenda on poverty dynamics and chronic poverty for the next ten years.'

Regional Integration and Economic Development in South Asia

NEW

Edited by Sultan Hafeez Rahman, Asian Development Bank, Sridhar Khatri, South Asia Center for Policy Studies and Hans-Peter Brunner, Asian Development Bank

South Asian leaders have made it a priority to tackle key regional issues such as poverty, environment degradation, trade and investment barriers, and food insecurity, among others. Under the umbrella of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC), regional integration debates have focussed on these key issues. This book considers the leadership of SAARC and the interaction with civil society in the process of South Asian regional cooperation and integration, and discusses how the emerging urgency in the provision of regional public goods provides an excellent opportunity to add to the string of successes in South Asian regional integration.

Globalisation, Agriculture and Development

Perspectives from the Asia-Pacific

Edited by Matthew Tonts and M.A.B. Siddique, The University of Western Australia

'This volume is both opportune and important. The issue of the links between globalization, agriculture and development need urgently to be emphasised in a world economy transfixed by issues of energy, industry and finance, the problems of the triad states, and the rise of the BRICs. The chapters in this volume begin this task through studies of agricultural change in Asia-Pacific countries, including Australia, New Zealand, the ASEAN nations, India and China. They show the uneven impacts of liberalization, contracting, and modernization that bring social change in their wake.'

Systemic Vulnerability and Sustainable Economic Growth

Skills and Upgrading in Southeast Asia

Bryan K. Ritchie, Michigan State University, US

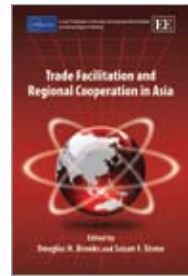

For many developing countries, economic growth is an elusive quest. Both economists and policymakers have long known that issues such as education, investment and infrastructure are necessary ingredients for development and yet only a very small number of countries seem to be able to come up with the right mix of these ingredients. Bryan Ritchie demonstrates how political relationships among government, business, academic and labor leaders create different incentives for economic actors to make key decisions to promote economic upgrading and sustainable development.

Trade Facilitation and Regional Cooperation in Asia

Edited by Douglas H. Brooks, Asian Development Bank, Philippines and Susan F. Stone, Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, France

'As we emerge from the worst global economic setback in two generations, the momentum of Asian economies suggests that this region will redefine the geography of trade and growth even more quickly and decisively than expected. Because Asia offers the largest emerging markets, superior growth rates, and new patterns of trade diversification, this region is becoming the leading edge of the global economy for the next generation. This volume addresses the essential issues related to Asian trade and regionalism with intellectual authority and essential timeliness. Brooks and Stone have assembled leading experts, distilled evidence, and synthesized policy lessons on the salient issues and trends that will drive the world's most dynamic economic region. Their book should be a desk reference for policy makers and leading private sector players who want to respond effectively to the momentous challenges and opportunities presented by the Asian century.'

'The Asian Tsunami is designed for all those interested in the issues of aid delivery. However, I do suggest this book should also be essential reading for all politicians and journalists concerned with the issue.'

– Nicholas Newman, Oxford Prospect

The 2004 Asian tsunami was the greatest natural disaster in recent times. Almost 230 000 people died. In response, governments in Asia and the broader international community announced large aid programs. The resulting assistance effort was one of the largest humanitarian programs ever organized in the developing world. This book discusses the lessons of the aid effort for disaster protection policy in developing countries.

Development Drivers and Limitations

Edited by Natalia Dinello, Global Development Network, New Delhi, India and Wang Shaoguang, Chinese University of Hong Kong and Tsinghua University, China

China, India and Beyond challenges the widespread belief that China and India will be the driving forces of the global economy in the 21st century. Scholars of these two countries offer scenarios ranging from buoyant to subdued to negative, depending on how they evaluate the drivers of development (market-oriented reforms, global integration and investment in human capital), and its limitations (infrastructure bottlenecks, environmental degradation and institutional frailties). The book covers a broad set of topics, including international trade and investment, health care and grassroots democracy.
