KEY TITLE

Edward and Lane on European Union Law

David Edward, University of Edinburgh and European Court of Justice 1989–2004 and Robert Lane, University of Edinburgh, UK

‘It is a real pleasure to see the publication of the third and much enlarged edition of Edward and Lane on European Union Law. It clearly and succinctly explains the essential features of the institutional and substantive law of the EU and can be strongly recommended to students and practitioners alike.’

– Aidan Robertson QC, Brick Court Chambers, UK

‘It is a great pleasure to welcome the new edition of the book written by Prof. Edward and Prof. Lane, which carries on the success of the earlier ones. This new edition contains a comprehensive and critical study of the European Union legal order, which explores in great detail the changes brought about by the Treaty of Lisbon. Bearing in mind the quality of its authors, it does not come as a surprise that this book is an outstanding piece of academic work. It is a classic which should belong to the library of all persons who are interested in EU law.’

– Koen Lenaerts, Vice-President of the Court of Justice of the European Union, Luxembourg

Key features of the book include:

- Authoritative authorship combining the analysis of a senior academic with the experience of a former judge.
- Comprehensive and wide-ranging in scope.
- Structured specifically to reflect the Treaty of Lisbon reorientation and immediate post-Lisbon developments.
- Extensive reference to primary sources (Treaties, legislation, case law) and to issues of national adaptation.

A fully updated and expanded new edition of a classic text, this authoritative and wide-ranging volume provides expert analysis on the key issues across all areas of European Union law – including its constitutional, procedural and substantive aspects. In particular, coverage of the constitutional and procedural elements includes: historical background and development of the European Union; constitutional structure of the Union; the Treaties: interrelationship and fundamental (constitutional) rules; the institutional framework; jurisdiction of, and actions before, the Court of Justice; sources, principles and methods of Union law.

Comprehensive coverage of the substantive law includes: basic rules; citizenship of the Union; the internal market; the four freedoms; competition; economic and monetary policy; social policy; environmental policy; commercial policy.

The Law and Regulation of Franchising in the EU
Mark Abell, Partner, Bird & Bird, London, UK

‘Mark Abell’s book argues that the European franchising market fails to reach its potential as it remains unregulated. He supports this by analysing the historical legal and economic basics and risk/attraction profiles of franchising to franchisors and franchisees, compares the European situation to the highly developed regulatory regimes in the USA and Australia, and moves through to proposing and drafting a new EU directive to bring greater certainty and stability to cross border franchising in the EU. Comprehensively researched and very detailed, this book is a worthy contribution to the literature on the subject.’

Originality in EU Copyright
Full Harmonization through Case Law
Eleonora Rosati, University of Cambridge, UK and European University Institute, Italy

‘This book guides us superbly through the controversial area of originality, a concept which lies at the very foundation of copyright law, but which has never before been analysed in any depth as a topic in its own right. Originality has however now become a hot topic, given the controversial recent case law of the EU Court of Justice on it, and the manner in which some national courts in the EU are seeking to apply it, which makes this book especially timely.’

Law and Practice
David Ashton, European Parliament and David Henry, McDermott Will & Emery, Belgium. Economics contribution from Frank Maier-Rigaud, IESEG (LEM-CNRS), Paris, NERA Economic Consulting, Brussels and Ulrich Schwabke, University of Heidelberg, Germany

‘This is a valuable and thoughtful contribution to the debate on EU competition law litigation. It is the first book to tackle the subject as a whole and from a practical perspective, and comes at a particularly timely moment after the publication of the Commission’s recent proposal. Anyone practising in this area of the law should certainly own a copy of this book.’

Eurasian Economic Integration
Law, Policy and Politics
Edited by Rilka Dragneva and Kataryna Wolczuk, University of Birmingham, UK

‘This book spectacularly delivers on what it promises, providing a comprehensive, clearly-stated and theoretically informed study of the latest round of integration efforts in post-Soviet Eurasia. Bringing together an impressive range of contributors, each of whom is a notable expert in their field, this will undoubtedly become a classic path-breaking study of regionalism in a part of the world that is unjustly neglected.’

European Intellectual Property Law
Text, Cases and Materials

Annette Kur, Max Planck Institute for Intellectual Property and Competition Law, Munich and Thomas Dreier, Karlsruhe Institute of Technology, Germany

“This hybrid volume, part commentary, part primary sources, with questions to stimulate further thinking, serves both as a teaching tool and as a manual for lawyers who seek a comprehensive overview of EU intellectual property law. The book aims at a generalist legal audience, with very helpful précis of international law, including the major multilateral treaties, as well as a summary of the EU legal framework that non-Europeans will find highly useful. The authors explore the full range of traditional and emerging IP rights. They also provide in-depth analysis of remedies and of the international private law issues that increasingly arise in complex IP litigation.”

Many aspects of private law are examined from a common law and from a civil law perspective and in the light of modern European harmonisation documents. This is essential reading for common lawyers seeking to understand the civil law, for civilians seeking to understand the common law, and offers to both groups a better understanding of their own systems.”

European Union Human Rights Law

The Dynamics of Interpretation and Context

Marton Varju, Hungarian Academy of Sciences, Hungary

The European Union’s jurisprudence is responsible for a complex body of human rights law which pursues a busy, multi-tiered agenda and is essential for the lawful and effective operation and development of the EU polity and its legal order. This innovative book investigates the character of EU human rights law as shaped by the interplay between interpretation and context in the jurisprudence of EU courts.

Marton Varju offers a comprehensive and up-to-date analysis of EU human rights case law. Providing a comprehensive analytical framework for the jurisprudence, he sheds new light on key EU constitutional principles and reveals the complex character of the legal analysis.

The European Court of Human Rights and its Discontents

Turning Criticism into Strength

Edited by Spyridon Flogaitis, European Public Law Organisation, Tom Zwart and Julie Fraser, The Netherlands School of Human Rights Research

The European Court of Human Rights has long been part of the most advanced human rights regime in the world. However, the Court has increasingly drawn criticism, with questions raised about its legitimacy and backlog of cases. This book for the first time brings together the critics of the Court and its proponents to debate these issues. The result is a collection which reflects balanced perspectives on the Court’s successes and challenges.

EU Environmental Legislation

Legal Perspectives on Regulatory Strategies

Edited by Marjan Peeters, Maastricht University and Rosa Uylenburg, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

EU Environmental Legislation: Legal Perspectives on Regulatory Strategies offers a cross-cutting debate on EU environmental legislation from a legal perspective, focussing on themes like regulatory instrument choice, the coherency of law, and enforceable commitments. Based on thorough discussions on several environmental domains, particularly water law, air quality law, industrial emissions law and climate and energy law, it presents the current state of EU environmental regulatory approaches and potential ways for improvement. It pays close attention to the consequences of EU legislative choices for Member States and balances the need for clear environmental legislation providing enforceable substantive rights to citizens against the wish to leave discretion to Member States.

Elgar European Law series

Founding editor: The late John Usher, formerly of the University of Exeter, UK

European integration is the driving force behind constant evolution and change in the laws of the member states and the institutions of the European Union. This important series offers short, state-of-the-art overviews of many specific areas of EU law, from competition law to consumer law and from environmental law to labour law. While most books take a thematic, vertical approach, others offer a more horizontal approach and consider the overarching themes of EU law.

Distilled from rigorous substantive analysis, and written by some of the best names in the field, as well as the new generation of scholars, these books are designed both to guide the reader through the changing legislation itself, and to provide a firm theoretical foundation for advanced study. They provide an invaluable source of reference for scholars and postgraduate students in the fields of EU law and European integration, as well as lawyers from the respective individual fields and policymakers within the EU.

EU Labour Law
A.C.L. Davies, Brasenose College, University of Oxford, UK

‘EU law, shaped both judicially and at the legislative level, disrupts national labour law – perhaps for good reasons, perhaps for bad reasons, sometimes for reasons which are elusive. Challenges of an intellectual and practical nature confront those trying to pick a path through material accumulated over several decades – and intrigue those thinking about the future of the European Social Model. This book offers an insightful, thoughtful and inspiring account of the nature(s) and purpose(s) of EU labour law and is a hugely welcome addition to the literature.’

EU Public Procurement Law
Second Edition
Christopher H. Bovis, University of Hull, UK

‘The Second Edition of EU Public Procurement Law provides a comprehensive view of the policies, legislation and cases that define this area of law. Written from a pan-European perspective, it will be a useful guide for students and practitioners alike. As well as describing the public contracts, utilities and remedies directives, this work details the European cases that have shaped the law and the relationship between procurement law and other forms of regulation such as state aid. Of particular interest to the practitioner, there are specific sections on remedies, evaluation criteria and different forms of procurement such as services concessions, public–private partnerships and public–public partnerships.’

EU Consumer Law and Policy
Second Edition
Stephen Weatherill, Somerville College, Oxford, UK

‘Consumers are expected to benefit from the EU’s project of economic integration, widening choice and improved quality, and yet they need protection from the dangers that flow from malfunctioning and unfair markets. EU consumer law and policy is an attempt to have the best of both worlds – a liberalised yet properly regulated trading space for Europe. This new edition explores all facets of the EU’s involvement in consumer law and policy and concludes with a newly written examination of the relationship between EU and national initiatives of market regulation – symbiosis or disruption?’

Acclaim for the first edition:

European Law
Reflexive Labour Law in the World Society
Ralf Rogowski, University of Warwick, UK

‘Rogowski’s challenging book offers a rigorous but accessible introduction to the theory of reflexive law, important and original insights into current issues in industrial relations and labour law and a fascinating preview of how a broad-based system of transnational law might one day emerge. Building on foundations laid down by Luhmann and Teubner, and on his own twenty-plus years of pioneering work, Rogowski firmly establishes reflexive labour law as a plausible and useful approach to the discipline.’

Religion, Rights and Secular Society
European Perspectives
Edited by Peter Cumper, University of Leicester and Tom Lewis, Nottingham Trent University, UK

‘Religion, Rights and Secular Society by Peter Cumper and Tom Lewis is a both timely and important publication. In a series of highly interesting and well-written essays – some of which are case studies covering many different European nations whereas others are more theoretical – the book looks at a key paradox in contemporary Europe: the relatively high levels of secularity in most European countries on the one hand, and the marked resurgence of religion in public debates on the other. While never pretending that there are ready answers to the problems of reconciling secular and religious values in Europe, the contributors make it quite clear that Europeans need to return to questions about religion that they had previously regarded as being settled. This is food for thought at a very high level!’

The Interaction between Europe’s Legal Systems
Judicial Dialogue and the Creation of Supranational Law
Giuseppe Martinico, Centro de Estudios Politicos y Constitucionales, Spain and Oreste Pollicino, Bocconi University, Italy

This book examines the broad issue of the rapprochement between the legal systems of the EU and the European Convention of Human Rights (ECHR) and asks whether the two systems are converging. While the literature on the issue of the national application of EC/EU law or that of ECHR norms is voluminous, a specific comparative analysis that takes into account the national judicial treatment of both laws has been lacking, until now.

China, the European Union and Global Governance
Edited by Jan Wouters, University of Leuven (K.U.Leuven), Tanguy de Wilde, Université catholique de Louvain, Pierre Defraigne, Madariga Foundation and Jean-Christophe Defraigne, Facultés universitaires Saint Louis, Belgium
China, the European Union and Global Governance examines the key determinants of European and Chinese approaches to the restructuring of global governance systems. With a multidisciplinary method, this collection of papers analyses four distinct fields that are key for both China and the EU and for the development of their relations and future cooperation: the global trading system, the international monetary system, climate and energy, and international security. In the context of China’s growing role in global governance and of EU–China cooperation, contributions emphasize strategies, prospects and objectives of both actors. They outline possible avenues for an enhanced partnership in light of the changing global order which implies a rethinking of the existing multilateral structures.

The relationship between human rights and the environment is a fascinating, uneasy, and increasingly urgent one. This international journal provides a strategic academic forum in which an extended interdisciplinary and multilayered conversation can take place concerning the challenges located at the interface of these two centrally important fields.
‘No journal better engages with the impact on human rights to changes in our environment than the Journal of Human Rights and the Environment. Its articles invariably pull off that rare trick of being scholarly, readable and relevant.’

Queen Mary Journal of Intellectual Property
Consultant Editors Johanna Gibson and Lord Hoffmann
Intellectual property law attracts diverse international attention and warrants considered scholarship and analysis. Not only is this an area of detailed practice and study, but also a significant part of each citizen’s daily life. From the question of access to products to concerns for the creative and innovative process, this area of law is of considerable interest to scholars and the general public alike. Modern intellectual property practice and scholarship is necessarily interdisciplinary, intersecting not only with other areas of law, but also with cultural and socio-economic approaches to knowledge. Contemporary research considers the operation of intellectual property in the context of human rights, social, political and economic spheres. Engaging the diversity of perspectives on these important issues is essential to comprehensive debate, and it is this richness of debate and interrogation to which QMJIP seeks to participate, by publishing high quality contributions to the field.
As an extension of the Queen Mary Intellectual Property Research Institute’s reputation as one of the foremost centres for intellectual property research and education, QMJIP has become an important forum for quality scholarship in this field, publishing full-length articles as well as analysis pieces and case reports, on a quarterly basis.
