THOMSON REUTERS' BOOK CITATION INDEX

We are one of the first publishers to agree to include book titles in the new Thomson Reuters' Book Citation Index. Historically only leading journals and conference proceedings have been included in the citation index which is accessed through the Thomson Reuters' Web of Knowledge research platform by 20 million users across 3,800 research institutions in 90 countries. We expect that this initiative will increase the visibility of Elgar books and help to ensure that citations to your work in our books are fully recognised.

We welcome our authors to contact their commissioning editor for more information.

KEY TITLES

A Republic of Europeans

Civic Potential
in a Liberal Milieu

Kostas A. Lavdas,
University of Crete
and Dimitris N.
Chrysoschoou, Panteion
University, Greece

'A Republic of Europeans looks at the institutions of the European Union in the search for an image that is fit to regulate the aspirations of member states and member subjects. It grounds this search in an informed account of how those institutions actually operate and it relies on the framework of ideas deriving from the European republican tradition to provide guidance for the project. The book gives us a regulative ideal for the development of the Union that ought to command the attention of citizens and policymakers alike.'

– Philip Pettit, Princeton University, US

A Republic of Europeans looks at the changing routes and conditions of the European polity from a liberal republican angle, proposing an innovative regulative ideal for Europe's future.

International Handbook on Informal Governance

NEW

Edited by Thomas Christiansen and
Christine Neuhold, Maastricht University,
The Netherlands

'This volume provides a welcome overview of the diverse ways in which informal practices and norms shape policy in national states, the European Union, and international relations. The wide range of cases that feature in the volume point to the normative and substantive importance of informality. This volume is a valuable contribution to a fascinating and under-researched topic.'

– Gary Marks, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill,
US and VU Amsterdam, The Netherlands

Acknowledging that governance relies not only on formal rules and institutions but to a significant degree also on informal practices and arrangements, this unique Handbook examines and analyses a wide variety of theoretical, conceptual and normative perspectives on informal governance.

European Foreign Policy

Legal and Political Perspectives

Edited by
Panos Koutrakos,
University of Bristol, UK

'This collection on EU foreign policy is an attractive one for several reasons: it contains a very nice set of essays on a topic which has loomed large on the European Union agenda for some years, namely the international role of the EU. The chapters are written by a range of interesting and eminent scholars in the field. Most importantly in terms of its distinctive contribution, the book brings together perspectives from law and from political science. This is done in part by including chapters by authors from different disciplines but also by choosing cross-pillar themes and topics such as the European Neighbourhood Policy, EU policy on Kosovo, security and defence policy, as well as more general cross-cutting themes like the idea of "coherence", the position of the EU within international organizations, and the approach of the EU to the international legal order. Each of the individual chapters is well worth reading, and the book as a whole is a useful and interesting contribution to the existing literature.'

– Gráinne de Búrca, Harvard Law School, US

Written by leading experts, this book focuses on central issues of the foreign policy of the European Union. The issues explored include:

- how the EU's judges understand its relationship with the international order;
- the coherence of the Union's external action;
- the EU's approach to its neighbours;
- the Common Security and Defence Policy; and,
- the EU's participation in international organisations.

European Energy Policy NEW

An Environmental Approach

Edited by Francesc Morata and Israel Solorio Sandoval, Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, Spain

'This book analyses a highly important topic. It is based on a comprehensive and empirically rich assessment of European Energy Policy, including both the internal and external determinants. Its encompassing approach and the thoughtful combination of different analytical perspectives, makes the book an important and fresh contribution to the field.'

A Relationship in Crisis

Edited by Luigi Burroni, University of Teramo, Italy, Maarten Keune, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands and Guglielmo Meardi, University of Warwick, UK

'Improving our understanding of how economy and society interrelate in Europe is of paramount importance. The rigorous and thought-provoking analyses about the interaction between markets and the institutions of society contained in this book undoubtedly represent an excellent example of how this improvement can be achieved, especially in these times of crisis.'

Cultural Diversity, European Identity and the Legitimacy of the EUEdited by Dieter Fuchs, University of Stuttgart and Hans-Dieter Klingemann, Social Science Research Center Berlin, Germany

As a consequence of various rounds of EU enlargements, the degree of cultural diversity in Europe has intensified – a phenomenon which is increasingly perceived as problematic by many EU citizens. This fascinating book not only empirically explores the current state of the identity and the legitimacy of the EU as viewed by its citizens, but also evaluates their attitudes towards it.

The Lisbon Treaty and the Future of European Law and Policy NEWEdited by Martin Trybus and Luca Rubini, University of Birmingham

'After Lisbon the EU has reached a new precarious stage in its development. New institutions have been created and policies reformed. The different chapters of this book cover the most important innovations, while providing a fresh critical assessment of the shortcomings of the present arrangements. Works are always in progress at the EU site and the authors provide the future architects of this grand building as well as the academic community with much food for thought.'

Civil Service Systems in Western Europe, Second EditionEdited by Frits M. van der Meer, Leiden University, The Netherlands

This thoroughly revised and updated second edition of Civil Service Systems in Western Europe presents a comprehensive overview of the important issues in modern bureaucracies and provides a comparative analysis of the civil service systems of various Western European nations.

Country-specific case studies – based on neo-institutional frameworks and underpinned by extensive empirical research – are presented by the expert contributors. The specific nature and development of civil service systems is emphasized, and special attention is paid to the current features of each national civil service. Each chapter has been reworked to include new material and topics, and new chapters on Denmark, France and the United Kingdom have been included.

Economic and NEW Social Integration

The Challenge for EU Constitutional Law

Dagmar Schiek, University of Leeds, UK

This book revisits a pivotal question at the heart of the European Union: Will the accelerated economic integration of nation states and their societies lead to heightened degrees of social integration within those states and at a European level? And what does the European Union's constitutional law contribute to setting the conditions of economic and social integration? Dagmar Schiek analyses these questions in light of European integration theory, a thorough analysis of case law and legal discourse – and, importantly, the changes brought about by the Treaty of Lisbon.

Before and After the Economic Crisis

What Implications for the 'European Social Model'?

Edited by

Marie-Ange Moreau,
University Lyon 2, France
and Inter-University
Research Centre on Globalization and Work
(CRIMT), Montréal, Canada

This timely book casts new light on the key issues arising from the contentious debate around the future of the European Social Model. The book brings together leading experts to provide a thorough and well-informed response to the recent developments in European social and labour law and policy, in the light of institutional changes. The contributors provide unique insights as they evaluate the impact of the enlargement processes, the implications of the Lisbon treaty, the integration of the Charter into EU law – and, crucially, the consequences of the economic crisis.

Policy, Performance and Management in Governance and Intergovernmental Relations

Transatlantic Perspectives

Edited by Edoardo Ongaro, Bocconi University and SDA Bocconi School of Management, Italy, Andrew Massey, University of Exeter, UK, Marc Holzer, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, Newark, US and Ellen Wayenberg, University College Ghent, Belgium

'The trend towards multi-level and intergovernmental governance arrangements has created a need for a new analytic language and for new frameworks of analysis. It has changed the nature of decision-making. This timely book combines perspective from public policy, public management and public finance and provides new insights into who governs the multi-level and intergovernmental polity and how it is governed, making it an essential addition to the literature.'

Governance and Intergovernmental Relations in the European Union and the United States

Theoretical Perspectives

Edited by Edoardo Ongaro, Andrew Massey, Marc Holzer and Ellen Wayenberg

'This book provides solid academic evidence of a lively debate and dialogue between US and EU scholars about Multilevel Governance (MLG) and Intergovernmental Relations (IGR). Beyond the contingencies of the terms and the path dependency of their historical developments, there are elements of convergence and overlap. This publication is a good example of how academic transatlantic dialogues result in a stronger understanding of the premises of our concepts, and of the functioning of our systems.'

The Welfare State and Life Transitions NEW PB

A European Perspective

Edited by

Dominique Anxo,
Linnaeus University,
Sweden, Gerhard Bosch,
University of Duisburg-
Essen, Germany and
Jill Rubery, University of Manchester, UK

'The Welfare State and Life Transitions presents a novel assessment of social policy in European countries. This collection of nine country studies neatly melds two distinct lines of social scientific inquiry: comparative welfare state scholarship and life-course research. Focusing on the interplay between structural and individual factors, this volume demonstrates that welfare states are not homogeneous entities; instead, they provide packages of policies that support some life transitions more than others.'

Trafficking and Human Rights

European and Asia-Pacific Perspectives

Edited by Leslie Holmes, University of Melbourne, Australia, Graduate School for Social Research, Warsaw, Poland and University of Bologna, Italy

This fascinating study by international experts provides original research findings on human trafficking, with particular reference to Europe, South-East Asia and Australia. A major focus is on why and how many states and organisations act in ways that undermine trafficked victims' rights, as part of 'quadruple victimisation'. It compares and contrasts policies and suggests which seem to work best and why. The contributors also advocate radical new approaches that most states and other formal organisations appear loath to introduce, for reasons that are explored in this unique book.

European Science and Technology Policy NEW PB

Towards Integration or Fragmentation?

Edited by Henri Delanghe,
Ugur Muldur, European Commission, Belgium and
Luc Soete, Maastricht
University, the Netherlands

'This volume gives an excellent overview of science and technology policy in Europe in the post-war period. Experts with a background in research and policy explain the historical and theoretical roots of the European Research Area. Contributions illuminate the tension between science policy and innovation policy and the difficulties to balance national, European and global priorities. Critical assessments of how the ERA has affected the overall performance of Europe lead to interesting proposals for how to cope with old and new challenges.'

Handbook on Third Sector Policy in Europe

Multi-level Processes and Organized Civil Society

Edited by Jeremy Kendall,
University of Kent,
Canterbury, UK

'This book will be a major resource for all those interested in the third sector policy environment in Europe. It is the product of extensive research collaboration, and Kendall has done an excellent job in bringing together the talents and knowledge of key researchers across the EU. There are detailed country based chapters and others exploring cross-cutting policy issues. Kendall brings these different perspectives together in overview chapters which explore, and explain, the developing European third sector policy landscape.'

The Antitrust Revolution in Europe

Exploring the European Commission's Cartel
Policy

Lee McGowan, Queen's
University Belfast, UK

'Lee McGowan's The Antitrust Revolution in Europe is a must-have contribution to any serious bookshelf on EU competition policy. In particular, he skillfully fills a gap in the literature on EU cartel policy. The book will be immensely useful to scholars, students and practitioners interested in the development and future challenges of this under-studied area of competition policy. McGowan deftly employs a politics/public policy approach that usefully applies central themes of actors, ideas and policy developments. McGowan expertly combines historical analysis with careful empirical work on recent developments. His investigation of the internationalisation of cartel policy helps to elucidate the future internal and external challenges in this important policy area.'

Happiness and Social Policy in Europe

Edited by Bent Greve,
Roskilde University,
Denmark

Happiness has become a central issue in research in recent years. This book brings together researchers from around Europe to present, analyse and discuss the relation between happiness and social policy. Bent Greve demonstrates in this unique book, that research on happiness is important to understand and that the welfare state and social policy is essential in promoting more jobs, social inclusion and to a certain degree also a high level of equality. He highlights that while differences do exist among the countries studied, clearly social policy has a role in increasing happiness in Europe.

International Science and Technology Cooperation in a Globalized World

The External Dimension of the European Research Area

Edited by Heiko Prange-Gstöhl, European Commission, Belgium

'This book gathers top expertise on the important role of the international dimension of the European Research Area. Global challenges require global approaches and thus international cooperation. . . This volume will certainly serve as an excellence source of reference for policy makers and programme managers as well as for scholars researching the development of the European research and innovation system. The evolution of the European Research Area is a highly complex process and excellent research from different disciplinary perspectives is necessary supporting policy development and decisions. Therefore the book is most welcome making an important contribution to the understanding and the development of the international dimension of European research and innovation policies.'

'This excellent book in the series of studies on EU reform and enlargement is not as dry as it first appears. . . The contributors outline the key changes as well as patterns of continuity in the institutional policies of the EU and their research which I feel will be highly beneficial to lawyers, economists and politicians. . . I found the book to be invaluable for postgraduate and advanced undergraduate students of EU politics and administrative science, as well as researchers, practitioners and journalists working in the fields of European studies more widely.'

Ethnic Diversity in European Labor Markets

Challenges and Solutions

Edited by Martin Kahanec,

Central European University, Budapest, Hungary, and Institute for the Study of Labor (IZA),

Bonn and Klaus F. Zimmermann, Institute for the Study of Labor (IZA), Bonn, Bonn University, and DIW Berlin (German Institute for Economic Research), Germany

Does ethnic diversity in European labor markets lead to poor socio-economic outcomes for some ethnic groups in the face of fierce competition for jobs and welfare? Or can labor immigration and improved integration of all ethnic groups instead provide a solution to the challenges posed by a shrinking population, an aging workforce, skill shortages and other bottlenecks that constrain the innovative potential of the EU? What can policymakers do to nurture and encourage such benefits of ethnic diversity in the EU? This book addresses these issues in a highly accessible way via an illuminating combination of hard data analysis with expert evaluation of various integration practices and policy options.

Industrial Productivity in Europe NEW

Growth and Crisis

Edited by Matilde Mas, Instituto Valenciano Investigaciones Económicas, Spain and Robert Stehrer, The Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies – WIIW, Austria

This book analyses growth at the total economy and industry level from an international perspective, providing unique cross-country comparisons.

The authors focus on the EU-25 countries but also include the US, Japan and Korea. The chapters explore growth patterns from a long-run perspective, although greater attention is paid to the period of expansion from 1995-2007 and the post 2008 period of crisis. Each contribution builds on a common methodology based on a detailed database providing a high degree of disaggregation with respect to the industries and factors accounting for growth. The role played by ICT is expertly emphasised, in particular the different paths followed in the US and the EU.

Spatial Scenarios in a Global Perspective

Europe and the Latin Arc Countries

Edited by

Roberto Camagni

and Roberta Capello,

Politecnico di Milano, Italy

'The rise of endogenous growth thinking has produced an understanding that the national and in fact the global economy depends generally on supply side initiatives that for the most part are driven at the local regional level. Focusing endogenous forces at the regional level has become elemental in our thinking about development and competitiveness at all levels. This book demonstrates that building and testing "local after-crisis scenarios" before crises occur informs policy and leadership at the critical flex points along the regional development horizon.'

The Economic Impact of Digital Technologies

Measuring Inclusion and Diffusion in Europe

Edited by

Paolo Guerrieri, College of Europe, Bruges, Belgium and Sara Bentivegna, University of Rome 'La Sapienza', Italy

The Economic Impact of Digital Technologies offers a profoundly illuminating examination of ICT transformations in Europe and its critical role in greater social inequality. It presents scholars and policy makers with original and practical tools to benchmark and assess the ICT diffusion and inclusion process. The core message of the book is that a coherent European strategy for embedding ICT technologies in society is long overdue.

Entrepreneurship Research in Europe

Evolving Concepts and Processes

Edited by

Odd Jarl Borch, University of Nordland, Norway, Alain Fayolle, EMLYON Business School, France and Solvay Brussels School of Economics and Management, Belgium, Paula Kyrö, Aalto University School of Economics, Finland and Elisabet Ljunggren, Nordland Research Institute, Norway

This engaging and topical book demonstrates the importance of entrepreneurship research at a time of turbulent environments, as well as highlighting the most recent developments in the field. It explores important avenues of new research and compares the differences in entrepreneurship between countries and regions. Viewing entrepreneurship as a dynamic learning and developmental process, the contributors discuss how the new ideological dialogue of entrepreneurship has started to expand its scope from business to society.

Work Inequalities in the Crisis NEW

Evidence from Europe

Edited by Daniel Vaughan-Whitehead, International Labour Office, Geneva, Switzerland and Sciences Po, Paris, France

'Since the successive crises erupted the increase in inequality has not been addressed. This important publication offers a comprehensive overview of recent developments in the workplace. It will help to promote a different policy agenda that is desperately needed to overcome the causes and consequences of the crisis, namely addressing work inequalities.'

Global Governance and the Role of the EU

Assessing the Future Balance of Power

Edited by Carlo Secchi, Bocconi University and Antonio Villafranca, ISPI, Milan, Italy

Two years after the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression, economic growth has resurfaced across the world, but with significant variation. This timely book illustrates that although mature economies (the EU in particular) are still confronting sluggish economic performance, emerging markets seem to have fully recovered. It explores the reform of global economic governance after the crisis and, in this context, addresses the role of the EU and its economic prospects for the coming decade.

European Universities and the Challenge of the Market

A Comparative Analysis

Marino Regini, University of Milan, Italy

'This book offers an analysis of the increasing influence of external demands on the dynamics of European higher education systems and institutions. It focuses on the growing openness of higher education to its external environment and suggests that a "market logic" has emerged in higher education institutions. In addition, the book addresses a number of crucial "drivers of change", like the massification of higher education, the emergence of the "knowledge economy" and the Bologna Process. And it studies the roles and interests of various stakeholders. This book should be of interest to all those who are involved in higher education, whether as internal actors in institutions of higher education, or as its external clients and policy makers. . .'

Edited by Wim Meeusen, Universiteit Antwerpen, Belgium

This unique and fascinating book illustrates that the 'credit crunch' and the ensuing financial and economic crisis of 2007-2009 did not only strike hard at the economy in the Western world, but also at its policymakers, at economics as a scientific discipline and, more specifically, at the process of European integration itself.

Institutions in Crisis

European Perspectives on the Recession

Edited by David Howden, Saint Louis University, Madrid, Spain

'The current European recession is being offered as an excuse for a wider, more expansive centralized Europe.

Failure to recognize the true causes of the recession – failed institutions that have plagued Europe for years, and will continue to do so if permitted to continue – will prolong the current malaise, and hold Europe back from its new future. Let us hope that the current volume does much to bring this new Europe to us.'

Public Investment, Growth and Fiscal Constraints

Challenges for the EU New Member States

Edited by Massimo Florio, Università di Milano, Italy

This book makes a unique contribution in advancing understanding of the fiscal condition and growth potential of the New Member States of the European Union. It provides new data, policy evaluation, and offers national and regional perspectives. The core research questions are the effect of public investment in the context of macroeconomic disequilibrium and how it is possible to finance capital accumulation in the present and future conditions of mounting public sector debt.

'The team of authors are leading experts on European employment trends and policy and have produced an excellent study that proposes a new index of job quality for Europe. Given its depth and breadth of coverage of theory and already existing indicators, the book is likely to be a landmark study. Readers will enjoy the engaging review of past and present works of classical political economy and behavioural economics and will benefit from the expert critical appraisal of more than 20 existing proposals for job quality indices. Most importantly, the authors design and test a new European Job Quality Index that provides a reliable and coherent measure of five critical dimensions of the character of contemporary jobs.'

School of Economics and Management, Belgium and Kiril Todorov, University of
National and World Economy, Bulgaria

What role can entrepreneurship play in a European economy that is more and more open to the rest of the world? In this European Union construction, what is the place of the nation states and economies that have only recently converted to a free market economy? It is these questions, among others, that the book explores and discusses in particular. The future steps required in developing European entrepreneurship in a dynamic and international context are also analyzed and synthesized.

The EU and India in Search of a Partnership

Sangeeta Khorana, Nicholas Perdikis, Aberystwyth University, UK, May T. Yeung, Estey Centre for Law and Economics in International Trade and William A. Kerr, University of Saskatchewan, Canada

'While there are no shortages of contributions on the theory or political economy of trade globalization, this monograph addresses the practical and applied side of all stages of trade negotiations between the EU, a group of countries with disparate production and hence trade structures, and an emerging economy. Written in a clear, jargon free style, this publication will be an extremely useful read for academics, policy makers and practitioners specializing in European and emerging countries trade issues.'

European Economics at a Crossroads

J. Barkley Rosser, Jr., James Madison University, Richard P.F. Holt, Southern Oregon University and David Colander, Middlebury College, US

As Europe moves toward an integrated academic system, European economics is changing. This book discusses that change, along with the changes that are happening simultaneously within the economic profession. The authors argue that modern economics can no longer usefully be described as 'neoclassical', but is much better described as complexity economics. The complexity approach embraces rather than assumes away the complexities of social interaction.

Towards Effective Place Brand Management

Branding European Cities and Regions

Edited by Gregory Ashworth, University of Groningen, The Netherlands and Mihalis Kavaratzis, International Business School – Budapest, Hungary

Many facets of place branding, such as identities, image, promotion or sense of place, have been around for a long time. However, the need to analyse their nature in the context of branding and to examine their relationships in detail has grown rapidly in the last decade or so, as places all over the world have put branding activities higher than ever in their agenda. This important new book examines and clarifies key aspects of the recently popularised concept of place branding, expounding many controversies, confusions and discords in the field.

Global Finance and Social Europe

Edited by John Grahl,
Middlesex University
Business School, UK

'This book provides an excellent critical account of the relationship between global financial developments, the emergent European financial system, and the implications of the operation of these for the European social model and its future. The chapters carefully analyze the characteristics of current financial relationships and show how these impinge on a whole range of policy areas from employment and social protection through to economic stability and retail financial markets. The book builds up a systematic picture of the pressures being experienced throughout European society as financial engineering has gathered pace, and provides telling suggestions as to how to combat the most threatening aspects of these developments for European policy makers. This book is a "must read" for anyone concerned about the possible consequences of recent tumultuous events that have shaken the global financial system.'

Security of Energy Supply in Europe

Natural Gas, Nuclear and Hydrogen

Edited by

François Lévêque, École
des Mines de Paris, France,

Jean-Michel Glachant,

European University

Institute RSCAS, Italy,

Julián Barquín, Universidad Pontificia Comillas,

Spain, Christian von Hirschhausen, University of Technology Dresden and DIW Berlin (German

Institute for Economic Research), Franziska Holz,

DIW Berlin, Germany and William J. Nuttall,

University of Cambridge, UK

In economic, technical and political terms, the security of energy supply is of the utmost importance for Europe. Alongside competition and sustainability, supply security represents a cornerstone of the EU's energy policy, and in times of rising geopolitical conflict plays an increasingly important role in its external relations. Within this context, the contributors analyse and explore the natural gas, nuclear, and hydrogen energy sectors, which will be of critical significance for the future of energy supplies in Europe.
