Good Government NEW

The Relevance of Political Science

Edited by Sören Holmberg and Bo Rothstein,
University of Gothenburg, Sweden

In all societies, the quality of government institutions is of the utmost importance for the well-being of its citizens. Problems like high infant mortality, lack of access to safe water, unhappiness and poverty are not primarily caused by a lack of technical equipment, effective medicines or other types of knowledge generated by the natural or engineering sciences. Instead, the critical problem is that the majority of the world's population live in societies that have dysfunctional government institutions. Central issues discussed in the book include: how can good government be conceptualized and measured, what are the effects of 'bad government' and how can the quality of government be improved?

Government, Governance and Welfare Reform NEW

Structural Changes and Subsidiarity in Italy and Britain

Edited by Alberto Brugnoli and
Alessandro Colombo, Époules Lombardia, Institute for Research, Statistics and Training, Italy

This fascinating book focuses on institutional changes, welfare reforms and transformations in both Britain and Italy over the last three decades. It was widely held in both countries that the arena of social and economic governance would shift to the national level, but to the surprise of many, a different trend has emerged; in otherwise very different national experiences, Britain and Italy have seen the sub-national level of governance become crucial in redefining public services, and in designing, delivering, and monitoring key services. The expert contributors use a distinctive and original principle – subsidiarity – as a lens through which to examine and assess these governance regimes, their philosophies, and their organisational choices.

RESEARCH COLLECTION*International Relations:
The Great DebatesEdited by Rainer Baumann, Peter Mayer,
Universität Bremen and Bernhard Zangl,
Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München, Germany

The history of international relations has been shaped by a sequence of 'Great Debates', in which leading scholars of the field advanced, challenged, and defended views about the assumptions that should inform the study of world politics. In this authoritative collection, the editors bring together for the first time the most important contributions to these inspiring intellectual exchanges and provide an excellent overview of the discipline's development since its inception in the early 20th century.

International Handbook on Informal Governance NEWEdited by Thomas Christiansen
and Christine Neuhold,
Maastricht University,
The Netherlands

'This volume provides a welcome overview of the diverse ways in which informal practices and norms shape policy in national states, the European Union, and international relations. The wide range of cases that feature in the volume point to the normative and substantive importance of informality. This volume is a valuable contribution to a fascinating and under-researched topic.'

– Gary Marks, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, US and VU Amsterdam, The Netherlands

Acknowledging that governance relies not only on formal rules and institutions but to a significant degree also on informal practices and arrangements, this unique Handbook examines and analyses a wide variety of theoretical, conceptual and normative perspectives on informal governance.

The Asia-Pacific, Regionalism and the Global System NEWEdited by Christopher M. Dent and Jorn Dosch, University of Leeds, UK

'Dent and Dosch have put together a superb volume that explores new dimensions of the world events for the past five decades and take decrypting the processes of regionalism, global system, and world society to a new height. The contributors have enhanced our understanding of how regionalism has been changing, when a world society will be created, and why East Asia's centrality matters in this unfolding drama. Policymakers, academics, and mass media opinion makers will find the book useful, provocative, and refreshing.'

– Eul-Soo Pang, Institute of Southeast Asian Studies, Singapore

This volume sheds critical light on how the Asia-Pacific region is shaping the world. It explores the key issues of regional co-operation, integration and international affairs within and across the Asia-Pacific, and questions how significant developments are impacting on the global system, in particular on emerging forms of global governance.

Reshaping Regional Policy

Edited by

Harry W. Richardson, University of Southern California, Chang-Hee
Christine Bae, University of Washington, Seattle, US
and Sang-Chuel Choe,
Presidential Committee on Regional Development,
South Korea

Originally initiated by the Presidential Committee on Regional Development in South Korea, this wide-ranging volume investigates the new directions in regional development policy taking shape around the world. In addition to contributions with individual emphasis on regional policy in Korea, the book compares, contrasts and extends regional policy thought in the European Union and other Asian countries.

Good Governance in the 21st Century

Conflict, Institutional
Change, and Development in the Era of Globalization

Edited by Joachim Ahrens,
PFH Private University of
Applied Sciences Göttingen,
Germany, the late Rolf
Caspers, formerly EBS
Universität für Wirtschaft und
Recht i. Gr., Wiesbaden and Janina Weingarth, Kiel
Institute for the World Economy, ASP, Germany

This book explores the interdependences of economic globalisation, political tensions, and national policymaking whilst analysing opportunities for governance reform at both national and international levels. It considers how governance mechanisms can be fashioned in order to both exploit the opportunities of globalization and cope with the numerous potential conflicts and risks.

New Thinking in Political Economy series

Religion in International Politics and Development

The World Bank and Faith
Institutions

John A. Rees, University of Notre Dame Australia (Sydney)

This unique and fascinating book illustrates that in moving the research agenda forward – despite whatever methodological pitfalls that may await in the attempt – the dynamics of religion must now be considered to be of central and abiding importance in the study of world politics.

An illuminating case study of the World Bank's engagements with religion/faith communities, institutions and social movements provides insights into the current discourse on religion in international relations. John A. Rees argues that religion is of equal importance to other structures of international relations (IR), and questions where religion is operating in world politics rather than what religion is in an essential sense. He constructs a new model for differentiating three distinct discourses of religion in the theory and practice of world politics, which he applies to the IR sphere of international development, and encourages new thinking in the field by answering conceptual and methodological challenges in religion research.

Migration and Global Governance NEW

Edited by Alan Gamlen,
Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand and
Katharine Marsh, Brown University, US

In this noteworthy collection, the editors present the key articles published over the past twenty years which illustrate three related 'modes' of governing migration: a national mode, an international mode and a transnational mode. In recent years a new phase of migration policy-making has emerged: nation states, international organizations and NGOs have increasingly directed their efforts towards cooperative management of transnational flows and networks. With an original introduction by the editors, this ground-breaking volume explores the rise of this distinctive new transnational approach in relation to other pre-existing and emerging modes of regulating global migration.

27 articles, dating from 1990 to 2010

The Power of Networks

Organizing the Global
Politics of the Internet

Mikkel Flyverbom,
Copenhagen Business
School, Denmark

'Mikkel Flyverbom's The Power of Networks is a timely and important contribution to the emerging interdisciplinary study of cyberspace politics. In an exceptionally well-written and researched book, Flyverbom employs a form of ethnographic method to uncover the grounded practices that inform the many "hybrid forums" and "entangled authorities" of Internet governance. The book will be of interest to those who want a deeper understanding of the complexity and nuance of the many social forces shaping global cyberspace today.'

Democracy and Dissent

The Challenge of International Rule Making

Frank Vibert, London School of Economics and European Policy Forum, UK

Frank Vibert expertly examines the fundamental issues involved in attempts to rethink international institutions and their rule making procedures. He analyses the basic problems with the existing system and the main approaches to its reform. The book rejects the idea that there are any simple institutional 'fixes' for current problems – such as relying on the G20 to coordinate global rule making and also rejects more ambitious attempts to prescribe new general organizing principles for world governance. It calls instead for specific remedies for specific problems.

Global Governance and the Role of the EU

Assessing the Future Balance of Power

Edited by Carlo Secchi, Bocconi University and
Antonio Villafranca, ISPI, Milan, Italy

Two years after the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression, economic growth has resurfaced across the world, but with significant variation. This timely book illustrates that although mature economies (the EU in particular) are still confronting sluggish economic performance, emerging markets seem to have fully recovered. It explores the reform of global economic governance after the crisis and, in this context, addresses the role of the EU and its economic prospects for the coming decade.

Regional and Urban Policy and Planning on the Korean Peninsula

Chang-Hee Christine Bae, University of Washington, Seattle and Harry W. Richardson,
University of Southern California, US

The potential for reunification of the two Koreas, whether in the short or long term, argues for a comprehensive look at policy and planning issues that encompass the peninsula as a whole. This book deals with spatial policy issues in both South and North Korea in a broad and non-political way.

The OECD

A Study of Organisational
Adaptation

Peter Carroll and
Aynsley Kellow, University of Tasmania, Australia

The book reveals, for the first time, the origins, growth and complex role of the OECD as it celebrates its fiftieth anniversary, showing how it has adapted – for the most part successfully – to the changing needs of its members, both large and small.

Robust Political Economy

Classical Liberalism and the Future of Public Policy

Mark Pennington, Queen Mary, University of London, UK

'... this book nicely synthesises a wide range of arguments and insights into a powerful and systematic analytical framework. Pennington provides a strong case to the effect that classical liberal institutions satisfy the criterion of robustness in that they successfully deal with the problems resulting from imperfect information and limited benevolence. He deftly defends the classical liberal approach against prominent and forceful criticisms, and skilfully applies it to some of the most difficult and pressing problems in public policy.'

Transatlantic Regulatory Cooperation

The Shifting Roles of the EU, the US and California

Edited by David Vogel, University of California, Berkeley, US and Johan F.M. Swinnen, Catholic University of Leuven and the Centre of European Policy Studies, Belgium

'David Vogel and Johan Swinnen have assembled a first-rate book on regulatory cooperation between the US and EU. The case studies provide detailed and nuanced analyses of policy areas from water to climate change and biotechnology, and the concluding chapters offer well-judged and balanced assessments of the regulatory challenges for future transatlantic relations.'

A Republic of Europeans

Civic Potential in a Liberal Milieu

Kostas A. Lavdas, University of Crete and Dimitris N. Chrysochoou, Panteion University, Greece

'A Republic of Europeans looks at the institutions of the European Union in the search for an image that is fit to regulate the aspirations of member states and member subjects. It grounds this search in an informed account of how those institutions actually operate and it relies on the framework of ideas deriving from the European republican tradition to provide guidance for the project. The book gives us a regulative ideal for the development of the Union that ought to command the attention of citizens and policymakers alike.'

Handbook on the Politics of Regulation

Edited by David Levi-Faur, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel and the Free University of Berlin, Germany

'This is an extraordinarily useful one-stop-shop for a wide range of traditions and approaches to the political aspects of regulation. David Levi-Faur has assembled a fine collection that by reporting on the state of the art also shows the way ahead for a discipline that has to capture and explain dramatic changes in real-world regulatory philosophies and policies.'

Partisan Appointees and Public Servants

An International Analysis of the Role of the Political Adviser

Edited by Chris Eichbaum, Victoria University of Wellington and Richard Shaw, Massey University, New Zealand

This comparative collection examines the role of political staff in executive government and the consequences for policymaking and governance. Included are case studies from Australia, Canada, New Zealand, the Republic of Ireland, the United Kingdom and the United States. The evidence suggests that political staff are likely to be an enduring feature of executive government, which one contributor refers to as the 'new public governance' with attendant risks and opportunities for the conduct of politics and administration.

Corruption and its Manifestation in the Persian Gulf

Hossein Askari, Scheherazade Sabina Rehman, George Washington University and Noora Arfaa, The World Bank, US

The authors of this timely book investigate various forms and measures of corruption, examine whether corruption is more acute in Persian Gulf countries than elsewhere, and illustrate the unique forms it takes in oil- and natural gas-rich economies. They also analyze the major factors that promote corrupt practices and how they impact economic growth and social development.

Egypt and the Politics of Change in the Arab Middle East

Robert Bowker, The Australian National University, Australia

In his book Egypt and the Politics of Change in the Arab Middle East, Professor Robert Bowker argues that if regimes fail to address effectively the demands for empowerment of its educated youth, they face the prospect of a tsunami-like current of instability and regression.

Financial Elites and Transnational Business

Who Rules the World?

Edited by Georgina Murray, Griffith University,
Australia and John Scott, University of Plymouth, UK

This absorbing book addresses the seemingly simple question of who rules the world along with the often tied question of who owns it, and what this means for the dynamics of global power distribution. Expert contributors write on individual nation states – the US, the UK, Australia, China, Europe, Mexico – and how these nation states relate to global capital. This means scrutinizing globalization from a fresh perspective; investigating the relationship between the most powerful states and transnational capital to discover what the most significant structures of power look like and who the dynamic manipulators of this power are.

Handbook on Globalization and Higher Education

Edited by Roger King, University of Bath, Open University, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK and University of Queensland, Australia, Simon Marginson, University of Melbourne, Australia and Rajani Naidoo, University of Bath, UK

Higher education has entered centre-stage in the context of the knowledge economy and has been deployed in the search for economic competitiveness and social development. Against this backdrop, this highly illuminating Handbook explores worldwide convergences and divergences in national higher education systems resulting from increased global co-operation and competition.

The Handbook of Globalisation, Second Edition

TEXTBOOK

Edited by
Jonathan Michie,
Kellogg College,
University of Oxford, UK

With contributions from the leading commentators in the field and an over-arching introduction from the editor, the concerns of this updated and revised Handbook are two-fold. Firstly, to redefine the concept of globalisation and dispel the haze that surrounds it through a systematic and thorough examination of the debate. Secondly, to advance the frontiers of current critical thinking on the role and impact of globalisation, on the winners and losers in the process, and on the implications for society, the economy and governance.

Immigration and the Financial Crisis

The United States and Australia Compared

Edited by John Higley, University of Texas at Austin, US, John Nieuwenhuysen and Stine Neerup, Monash University, Australia and Copenhagen University, Denmark

Structural needs for immigrant labour in health care, restaurant, tourism, agricultural and other economic sectors, together with harsher economic circumstances in most sending countries, almost certainly ensure the continuation of large-scale immigration to the US and Australia. But in harder times, especially in the US, sustaining this immigration while managing immigrants' economic and social integration are daunting tasks. This illuminating book analyses how well, and in what ways, the US and Australia will meet these challenges.

Handbook on Trade and the Environment

Edited by Kevin P. Gallagher, Boston University and Tufts University, US

In this comprehensive reference work, Kevin Gallagher has compiled a fresh and broad-ranging collection of expert voices commenting on the interdisciplinary field of trade and the environment. The editor's well worked introduction synthesizes the emerging themes of the collection, which is divided into three sections: trade and environmental quality, trade and environmental politics, and trade and environmental policy.

Migration and the Globalisation of Health Care

The Health Worker Exodus?

John Connell, University of Sydney, Australia

The international migration of health workers has been described by Nelson Mandela as the 'poaching' of desperately needed skills from under-privileged regions. This book examines the controversial recent history of skilled migration, and explores the economic and cultural rationale behind this rise of a complex global market in qualified migrants and its multifaceted outcomes.

Immigration and Nation Building

Australia and Israel Compared

Edited by Andrew Markus, Monash University, Australia and Moshe Semyonov, Tel-Aviv University, Israel

'Immigration and Nation Building examines a dilemma shared by Israel and Australia with many other countries: they are nations of immigrants, but continued immigration introduces fractures and inequalities that could undermine the sense of nationhood. Systematic comparisons across many dimensions help the reader to view each country's experience from a new perspective. The analyses here provide a solid basis for addressing the underlying policy questions: Whose Israel? Whose Australia?'

International Science and Technology Cooperation in a Globalized World

The External Dimension of the European Research Area

Edited by Heiko Prange-Gstöhl, European Commission, Belgium

'This volume brings together the most recent results of policy research on international S&T cooperation in the European Research Area. The book comes at a time when EU member states start working together in a new European Partnership for International S&T Cooperation by developing joint activities targeting commonly agreed thematic and regional priorities. Based on sound theoretical considerations the book also provides practical guidance on how to set S&T priorities and develop cooperative activities at European level. It is a most welcome and important contribution to the understanding and development of the international dimension of European research and innovation policies.'

The Handbook on the Political Economy of War

Edited by Christopher J. Coyne, George Mason University and Rachel L. Mathers, Delaware State University, US

By defining political economy and war in the broadest sense, this unique Handbook brings together a wide range of interdisciplinary scholars from economics, political science, sociology, and policy studies to address a multitude of important topics. These include an analysis of why wars begin, how wars are waged, what happens after war has ceased, and the various alternatives to war. Other sections explore civil war and revolution, the arms trade, economic and political systems, and post-conflict reconstruction and nation building. Policymakers as well as academics and students of political science, economics, public policy and sociology will find this volume to be an engaging and enlightening read.

Terrorism, Security and the Power of Informal Networks

Edited by David Martin Jones, University of Queensland, Australia, Ann Lane, King's College London and UK Defence Academy and Paul Schulte, LSE and UK Defence Academy

This innovative work examines the concept of the informal network and its practical utility within the context of counter terrorism. Drawing together a range of practitioner and academic expertise it explores the character and evolution of informal networks, addressing the complex relationship between kinship groups, transnational linkages and the role that globalisation and new technologies play in their formation and sustainability.

Global Business and the Terrorist Threat

Edited by Harry W. Richardson, Peter Gordon and James E. Moore II, University of Southern California, US

Global business is affected by global terrorism and the two are intricately linked on many levels. This book is an eclectic and enlightening compendium of research that explores the interrelationships between the two. A companion to and expansion on the authors' previous books on the area, Global Business and the Terrorist Threat takes a closer look at practical business management, as influenced by terrorist infrastructure, networks and actions.

Terrorism and Social Exclusion

Misplaced Risk – Common Security

Edited by David Wright-Neville, International Security Consultant and Anna Halafoff, Monash University, Australia

Recent thinking on globalization places risk at the centre of contemporary life. Yet what if our perception of risk is misplaced? What if the greatest risk is not terrorism itself but the conditions that allow terrorism to flourish? This fascinating book illustrates that elevated perceptions of terrorism-related risks are having a deleterious impact on many societies, exacerbating feelings of exclusion among individuals and groups. Via their exploration of various societies, the expert contributors show that as a causal factor of terrorism, social exclusion can be remedied by inclusive, participatory and deliberative measures. They prescribe a recalibration of counter-terrorism policies to unite rather than divide multicultural societies.

Human Rights NEW PB*Confronting Myths and Misunderstandings*Andrew Fagan, University of Essex, UK

This book offers both an introduction to and a critical analysis of enduring themes and issues in the contemporary theory and practice of human rights. The author argues that the moral authority and practical efficacy of human rights are adversely affected by a range of myths and misunderstandings – from claims regarding the moral status of human rights as an allegedly fully comprehensive moral doctrine to the view that the possession of rights is anti-ethical to recognising the importance of moral duties. The author also examines such issues as the claim that human rights can ultimately only be said to exist as legal phenomena and the claim that nation-states are inherently hostile to the spirit of human rights. Discussion cuts across academic boundaries in an attempt to defend human rights against those who have come to expect too much and those who expect too little from human rights.

Trafficking and Human Rights*European and Asia-Pacific Perspectives

Edited by Leslie Holmes, University of Melbourne, Australia, Graduate School for Social Research, Warsaw, Poland and University of Bologna, Italy

Human trafficking is widely considered to be the fastest growing branch of trafficking. It has moved rapidly up the agenda of states and international organisations since the early-1990s, not only because of this growth, but also as its implications for security and human rights have become clearer. This fascinating study by European and Australian specialists provides original research findings on human trafficking, with particular reference to Europe, South-East Asia and Australia. A major focus is on how many states and organisations act in ways that undermine trafficking victims' rights.

Systemic Vulnerability and Sustainable Economic Growth*Skills and Upgrading in Southeast Asia*Bryan K. Ritchie, Michigan State University, US

For many developing countries, economic growth is an elusive quest. Both economists and policymakers have long known that issues such as education, investment and infrastructure are necessary ingredients for development and yet only a very small number of countries seem to be able to come up with the right mix of these ingredients. Bryan Ritchie demonstrates how political relationships among government, business, academic and labor leaders create different incentives for economic actors to make key decisions to promote economic upgrading and sustainable development.

Making Fishery NEW Agreements Work

Post-Agreement Bargaining in the Barents Sea

Geir Hønneland, Fridtjof Nansen Institute and the University of Tromsø, Norway

'Environmental governance is not just a matter of laying down clear rules and regulations and then finding ways to enforce them. Developing the idea of "post-agreement bargaining" and drawing on his exceptional knowledge of the world-class fisheries of the Barents Sea, Geir Hønneland illuminates the ongoing processes of interpretation, mutual accommodation, and adjustment to changing circumstances that play an essential role in making environmental regimes work.'

Handbook of Global NEW Environmental Politics, Second Edition

Edited by Peter Dauvergne, University of British Columbia, Canada

The second edition of this Handbook contains more than 30 new and original articles as well six essential updates by leading scholars of global environmental politics. This landmark book maps the latest theoretical and empirical research in this energetic and growing field. Captured here are the pioneering and lively debates over concerns for the health of the planet and how they might best be addressed.

Governing NEW International Rivers

Polycentric Politics in the Mekong and the Rhine

Tun Myint, Carleton College, Northfield, US

'Comparative studies of great river systems and the politics of their regulation are rare. Far rarer still are comparisons of this historical depth, analytical sophistication, attention to local detail and to the contingencies that make breakthroughs possible. Tun Myint's study of the Rhine and Mekong will inspire and inform future studies of both river and environmental politics.'

Russia's Energy Policies NEW

National, Interregional and Global Levels

Edited by Pami Aalto, University of Tampere, Finland

'The book explains Russian energy policies, instead of a policy. It portrays a picture with multiple policy drivers, including institutional, regional and federal, environmental and commercial. The study markedly improves our understanding of the multifaceted nature of Russian energy policy, a topical and complex issue. This is a highly commendable book that should be included in the reading lists of anyone with an interest in the role of energy in Russia's political economy or energy matters more generally.'

Globalisation and Natural Resources Law

Challenges, Key Issues and Perspectives

Elena Blanco and Jona Razzaque, University of the West of England, UK

This book examines the complex relationships between trade, human rights and the environment within natural resources law. It discusses key theories and challenges whilst exploring the concepts and approaches available to manage crucial natural resources in both developed and developing countries. Primarily aimed at undergraduates and postgraduates, it includes exercises, questions and discussion topics for courses on globalisation and/or natural resources law as well as an ample bibliography for those interested in further research. The book will therefore serve as an invaluable reference tool for academics, researchers and activists alike.

Modern Cost–Benefit Analysis of Hydropower Conflicts

Edited by Per-Olov Johansson, Stockholm School of Economics, SLU and Umeå University and Bengt Kriström, SLU and Umeå University, Sweden

This important book sheds light on the ways in which modern tools of welfare economics can be used to assess the benefits and costs of resource conflicts involving hydropower. The chapters highlight key methodological issues in this area; ranging from the intersection between cost-benefit analysis and behavioral economics, to the value of load balancing services provided by hydropower. The inclusion of insights from expert contributors from both sides of the Atlantic brings a unique and interesting range of viewpoints to the work.

Governance for the Environment

A Comparative Analysis of Environmental Policy Integration

Edited by

Alessandra Gorla, Fondazione Eni Enrico Mattei, Italy,

Alessandra Sgobbi,

formerly of Fondazione Eni Enrico Mattei, Italy and European Commission – EuropeAid Cooperation Office, Belgium and Ingmar von Homeyer, Ecologic Institute, Germany

The integration of environmental concerns into other policy areas is widely recognized as a key element to achieve sustainable development. It also represents a challenge for the environmental community, requiring not only a new approach to policy-making but also changes to existing policies and their implementation. This essential book presents a diverse set of perspectives and experiences on how to support sustainable development through the integration of environmental issues into various policy sectors.

Transnational NEW PB Environmental Governance

The Emergence and Effects of the Certification of Forests and Fisheries

Lars H. Gulbrandsen, Fridtjof Nansen Institute, Norway

'Incisive and nuanced, Transnational Environmental Governance significantly advances our understanding of the capacity of certification to influence the environmental behaviour of corporations and consumers. Lars Gulbrandsen's subtle analysis leaves us with an innovative toolbox to explain when and why voluntary certification programs succeed – or fail – to strengthen environmental governance. It is essential reading for anyone wanting a more accurate way to evaluate the growing number of non-state certification programs.'

The Automotive Industry NEW PB in an Era of Eco-Austerity

Creating an Industry as if the Planet Mattered

Peter E. Wells, Cardiff University, UK

'A splendid analysis of how an automotive industry based on mass production has become an alien in our time – where diversity and personalised products and services have become the norm. Peter Wells presents an intriguing analysis of how the automotive industry can find ways forward and re-invent itself. A must read for all interested in sustainable mobility, as well as strategists in the automotive industry.'

Ethics and Global Environmental Policy

Cosmopolitan Conceptions of Climate Change

Edited by Paul G. Harris, Hong Kong Institute of Education

'We've had 20 years of government-level conferences at Kyoto, Copenhagen and Cancun, but greenhouse gas emissions continue to rise. Taking a cosmopolitan approach to climate change in this excellent and timely book, Paul Harris and his contributors argue that citizen action is an essential complement to state action. The challenging, unsettling and absolutely vital argument of these high-quality essays is that distance makes no moral difference in our globalised world; individual high emitters have a duty to reduce their emissions, wherever they are.'

THOMSON REUTERS' BOOK CITATION INDEX

We are one of the first publishers to agree to include book titles in the new Thomson Reuters' Book Citation Index. Historically only leading journals and conference proceedings have been included in the citation index which is accessed through the Thomson Reuters' Web of Knowledge research platform by 20 million users across 3,800 research institutions in 90 countries. We expect that this initiative will increase the visibility of Elgar books and help to ensure that citations to your work in our books are fully recognised.

We welcome our authors to contact their commissioning editor for more information.
