THOMSON REUTERS BOOK CITATION INDEX

We are one of the first publishers to agree to include book titles in the new Thomson Reuters Book Citation Index. Historically only leading journals and conference proceedings have been included in the citation index which is accessed through the Thomson Reuters' Web of Knowledge research platform by 20 million users across 3,800 research institutions in 90 countries. We expect that this initiative will increase the visibility of Elgar books and help to ensure that citations to your work in our books are fully recognised. The Book Citation Index is due to launch in late 2011 and we have already submitted all our electronic book files back to 2007 for their consideration. Reprinted material, textbooks and reference works such as dictionaries will not be included however we expect that all of our Research Handbooks, authored monographs and original edited collections will be.

Civil Service Systems in Western Europe, Second Edition

Edited by Frits M. van der Meer,
Leiden University,
The Netherlands

This thoroughly revised and updated second edition of Civil Service Systems in Western Europe presents a comprehensive overview of the important issues in modern bureaucracies and provides a comparative analysis of the civil service systems of various Western European nations.

Country-specific case studies – based on neo-institutional frameworks and underpinned by extensive empirical research – are presented by the expert contributors. The specific nature and development of civil service systems is emphasised, and special attention is paid to the current features of each national civil service.

Performance Auditing NEW

Contributing to Accountability
in Democratic Government

Edited by Jeremy Lonsdale, National Audit Office, London, UK, Peter Wilkins, Deputy Ombudsman, Western Australia and Tom Ling, RAND Europe, Cambridge, UK

'This book is a much welcome tonic for public administration. It is one of the few books that explicitly focus on how audit institutions carry out their performance auditing responsibilities. While auditors will likely read this, the authors have geared the book to a broader readership, including public managers who are often the subject of performance audits.'

Democracy and Dissent

The Challenge of International
Rule Making

Frank Vibert, London School of Economics and European Policy
Forum, UK

'A thoughtful and authoritative work on international rule making and a fresh approach to the challenges it poses to democracy.'

– John Braithwaite, Australian National University

Frank Vibert expertly examines the fundamental issues involved in attempts to rethink international institutions and their rule making procedures. He analyses the basic problems with the existing system and the main approaches to its reform. The book rejects the idea that there are any simple institutional 'fixes' for current problems – such as relying on the G20 to coordinate global rule making and also rejects more ambitious attempts to prescribe new general organising principles for world governance. It calls instead for specific remedies for specific problems.

Statelessness and Citizenship

A Comparative Study on the Benefits of Nationality

Edited by Brad K. Blitz, Kingston
University, London, UK and
Maureen Lynch, Refugees
International, US

'Embracing a subject that is generally treated abstractly, as a matter of human rights law, the authors of this pathbreaking book root statelessness deep into historical context and lived experience. They emerge with conclusions that are both dismaying (the expansive scope of the problem) and hopeful (the measurable progress some states have made in expanding the boundaries of citizenship). Alas, this eloquent book could hardly be more timely.'

– Linda K. Kerber, University of Iowa, US

The existence of stateless populations challenges some central tenets of international law and contemporary human rights discourses, yet only a very small number of states have made measurable progress in helping individuals acquire or regain citizenship. This fascinating study examines positive developments in eight countries and pinpoints the benefits of citizenship now enjoyed by formerly stateless persons.

Urban Transport in the NEW Developing World

A Handbook of Policy and Practice

Edited by Harry T. Dimitriou, University College London, UK and Ralph Gakenheimer, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, US

The twenty thematic chapters in this book provide a broad set of perspectives on the plight, possibilities and opportunities of urban transport in the developing world, set against the challenges of sustainable development. The contributors expertly set the international context of transport policy-making and planning for developing cities and present a critical review of recent developments that have taken place and which offer lessons for the future.

The Power of Networks NEW

Organizing the Global Politics of the Internet

Mikkel Flyverbom, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark

This book offers a rich account of the practices and effects of organizing global politics and governance through dialogues and collaborations among governments, business and civil society. This innovative ethnographic study of the links between the global politics of the Internet, multi-stakeholder arrangements and entangled forms of power and authority shows how insights from actor-network theory and research can reinvigorate studies of transnational governance and organizational processes.

Edited by Edoardo Ongaro, Bocconi University and SDA Bocconi School of Management, Italy, Andrew Massey, University of Exeter, UK, Marc Holzer, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, Newark, US and Ellen Wayenberg, University College Ghent, Belgium

'The trend towards multi-level and intergovernmental governance arrangements has created a need for a new analytic language and for new frameworks of analysis. It has changed the nature of decision-making. This timely book combines perspective from public policy, public management and public finance and provides new insights into who governs the multi-level and intergovernmental polity and how it is governed, making it an essential addition to the literature.'

Living with Declining Living Standards

Thayer Scudder, California Institute of Technology, US

'This is an extraordinary, bold, and exceptionally well thought out prospectus on the next century of the human condition. Declining living standards, consequential to the pervasive pursuit of growth in terms of Gross Domestic Product, is a central theme that is thoroughly documented and engagingly articulated. The decisive role in the decline of living standards played by global threats including poverty, fundamentalism, environmental degradation, wars, and excess consumption, is compellingly presented from the perspective of the author's unique career.'

Handbook on Multi-level Governance

Edited by Henrik Enderlein, Hertie School of Governance, Germany, Sonja Wälti, American University, US and Michael Zürn, Social Science Research Center Berlin and Freie Universität Berlin, Germany

'The editors have produced an authoritative and comprehensive guide to multi-level governance. The book ranges across the domestic context, supraregionalism and global governance – all filtered through a sophisticated analytical framework and attention to policy detail. There is no better place to go than this book for a guide to the topic. An outstanding accomplishment.'

Good Governance in the 21st Century NEW

Conflict, Institutional Change and Development in the Era of Globalization

Edited by Joachim Ahrens, PFH Private University of Applied Sciences Göttingen the late Rolf Caspers, formerly EBS Universität für Wirtschaft und Recht i. Gr., Wiesbaden and Janina Weingarth, Kiel Institute for the World Economy, ASP, Germany

This book explores the interdependences of economic globalisation, political tensions, and national policymaking whilst analysing opportunities for governance reform at both national and international levels. It considers how governance mechanisms can be fashioned in order to both exploit the opportunities of globalisation and cope with the numerous potential conflicts and risks.

Game Theory and Public Policy PB*Roger A. McCain, Drexel University, US

Game theory is useful in understanding collective human activity as the outcome of interactive decisions. In recent years it has become a more prominent aspect of research and applications in public policy disciplines such as economics, philosophy, management and political science, and in work within public policy itself. Here Roger McCain makes use of the analytical tools of game theory with the pragmatic purpose of identifying problems and exploring potential solutions in public policy.

Organizing Democracy

The Construction of Agency in Practice

Edited by Göran Sundström, Linda Soneryd, Stockholm University and Stockholm Centre for Organizational Research (Score) and Staffan Furusten, Stockholm School of Economics and Stockholm Centre for Organizational Research (Score), Sweden

'The proliferation of interactive forms of governance may challenge and problematize the predominant model of liberal representative democracy. Nevertheless, the new governance arrangements may also contribute to a reinvigoration of democracy in the face of the growing democratic disenchantment. Instead of continuing the endless theoretical debates on this issue, this book presents a number of empirical studies of how democracy is articulated and re-articulated by a plethora of actors in the new interactive governance arenas. As such, the book provides a most welcome analysis of the embryonic reinvention of democracy in our increasingly complex, fragmented and multi-layered societies.'

Worlds in Transition TEXT

Evolving Governance Across a Stressed Planet

Joseph A. Camilleri, La Trobe University, Melbourne and Jim Falk, University of Melbourne, Australia

We are living through a unique moment of transition, marked by a frenetic cycle of invention, construction, consumption and destruction. However, there is more to this transition than globalisation, argue the authors of this unique and penetrating study. In their highly innovative approach, they set this transition against a broader evolutionary canvas, with the emphasis on the evolution of governance.

Entrepreneurship and Public Policy

Edited by David Smallbone, Kingston University, UK

'This book brings together a comprehensive collection of both classic and recent articles covering a broad terrain of knowledge about the scope of small business and entrepreneurship policy and adeptly lays out some of the conflicting views and evidence about the effective role and impact of public policy to promote entrepreneurship and small business. This will contribute greatly to the debate on how, under what conditions, and in which economic contexts, policy measures of various kinds impact on the start-up and growth of new and small enterprises.'

International Handbook of Urban Policy, Volume 3 NEW

Issues in the Developing World

Edited by H.S. Geyer, Stellenbosch University, South Africa

This important Handbook reveals that most urban growth takes place in the less developed world and much of it represents over-urbanization - i.e. urbanization in which most migrants cannot effectively compete for employment, cannot find adequate shelter and do not have the means to feed themselves properly. Yet, compared to rural poverty urban poverty is widely regarded as the lesser of the two evils. H.S. Geyer and his contributors highlight the enormous challenges posed by urbanization to decision makers at all levels of government. This final volume in a series of three original reference works covers four broad themes including: urban growth patterns; spatial issues; policy issues; and urban growth determinants.

International Handbook of Urban Policy, Volume 2

Issues in the Developed World

Edited by H.S. Geyer, Stellenbosch University, South Africa

This Handbook brings together a range of viewpoints on a number of the burning issues affecting urban sustainability in North America and Europe at the beginning of the 21st century. H.S. Geyer and his contributors cover a wide spectrum of the urban policy issues that determine the growth and development progress as well as the livability of cities in the Occident.

Theoretical Perspectives

Edited by Edoardo Ongaro, Bocconi University and SDA Bocconi School of Management, Italy, Andrew Massey, University of Exeter, UK, Marc Holzer, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, Newark, US and Ellen Wayenberg, University College Ghent and Ghent University, Belgium

'This book provides solid academic evidence of a lively debate and dialogue between US and EU scholars about Multilevel Governance (MLG) and Intergovernmental Relations (IGR). Beyond the contingencies of the terms and the path dependency of their historical developments, there are elements of convergence and overlap. This publication is a good example of how academic transatlantic dialogues result in a stronger understanding of the premises of our concepts, and of the functioning of our systems.'

Immigration and Nation Building

Australia and Israel Compared

Edited by Andrew Markus, Monash University, Australia and Moshe Semyonov, Tel-Aviv University, Israel

'Immigration and Nation Building examines a dilemma shared by Israel and Australia with many other countries: they are nations of immigrants, but continued immigration introduces fractures and inequalities that could undermine the sense of nationhood. Systematic comparisons across many dimensions help the reader to view each country's experience from a new perspective. The analyses here provide a solid basis for addressing the underlying policy questions: Whose Israel? Whose Australia?'

Health Care TEXT and Public Policy

David Reisman, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore and University of Surrey, UK

Health care is absorbing an increasing share of resources in all countries. It is the task of public policy to ensure that the nation secures good quality attention at an affordable price. This book, distinguishing clearly between health status and health care, examines the ways in which governments can keep down morbidity and mortality while also ensuring that treatments are medically justifiable, economically cost-effective and socially equitable. Ignorance, uncertainty, asymmetrical information, professional monopolies, insurance, poverty all mean that the market by itself is not enough.

Diversity, Economic Growth and Social Cohesion

Edited by Maddy Janssens, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium, Dino Pinelli, Fondazione Eni Enrico Mattei, Italy, Dafne C. Reymen, IDEA Consult, Belgium and Sandra Wallman, University College London, UK

This book focuses on cities, their relationships with each other and the disparities between them. Analysing cities as the places where diversity is especially apparent, where cultural richness is experienced and where conflicts often erupt, it illustrates how cultures and cultural diversity interact with economic growth and development.

Governance in a Disenchanted World

The End of Moral Society

Helmut Willke, Zeppelin University, Friedrichshafen, Germany

This book expounds the idea of a disenchanted world composed of nation states and global functional systems. The nation state is losing some of its regulatory prerogatives and, at the same time, extending its legitimacy base in 'chains of legitimacy' to transnational institutions. There is neither a global democracy nor a global government. Therefore, establishing alternative forms of legitimacy, accountability and participation in a secular world seem mandatory. Helmut Willke examines the resurgence of moral reasoning in global affairs, pushed by various fundamentalisms, that indicates a real danger of a regression of democracy.

Public Sector Leadership

International Challenges and Perspectives

Edited by Jeffrey A. Raffel, University of Delaware, US, Peter Leisink, Utrecht University, The Netherlands and Anthony E. Middlebrooks, University of Delaware, US

The authors of this book define the issues facing public authorities and organisations in a range of developed nations as they address the challenges of the 21st century. They examine an array of ways leaders across these nations are addressing these challenges. The result is a comprehensive analysis of ways to improve leadership in the public sector and of the role of political and administrative leaders in shaping the future of the public sector.

European NEW Universities and the Challenge of the Market

A Comparative Analysis

Marino Regini, University of Milan, Italy

'UK academics are frequently exhorted to integrate a European (and global) perspective into their syllabuses, especially where their students are drawn from a wide variety of national backgrounds. But this is difficult when there is a dearth of detailed, accessible contemporary accounts of national practices elsewhere. This edited book goes a very long way to help them. It offers detailed, rigorously researched descriptions of the nature and effects on higher education of its "marketisation" – descriptions rooted in robust theoretical and conceptual frameworks which help the reader situate the descriptions in their own context.'

Handbook on Globalization NEW and Higher Education

Edited by Roger King, Open University and London School of Economics and Political Science, UK, Simon Marginson, University of Melbourne, Australia and Rajani Naidoo, University of Bath, UK

Higher education has entered centre-stage in the context of the knowledge economy and has been deployed in the search for economic competitiveness and social development. Against this backdrop, this highly illuminating Handbook explores worldwide convergences and divergences in national higher education systems resulting from increased global co-operation and competition.

The 'Woman Question' and Higher Education

Perspectives on Gender and Knowledge Production in America

Edited by Ann Mari May, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, US

'The interdisciplinary mix of sharp commentary and scholarship has the potential to invigorate and reawaken debate on why women aren't advancing faster in academia and the role of theoretical, social, and institutional bias in perpetuating this inequity . . . Undergraduate and graduate students of educational and workplace inequality, women's studies, and neoclassical theory will benefit from engaging in the dialogues raised in this book.'

Smart Leadership for Higher Education in Difficult Times

Edited by David W. Breneman, University of Virginia and Paul J. Yakoboski, TIAA-CREF Institute, US

'In an era of sound bites, Smart Leadership for Higher Education in Difficult Times provides an outstanding analysis of the context in which today's colleges and universities operate. The essays are thought provoking, insightful and valuable for preparing our institutions for an uncertain future. Through case studies and personal experience, contributors challenge readers to reflect on our own institutions and re-imagine higher education.'

– Graham B. Spanier, The Pennsylvania State University, US

This volume of essays examines the challenges and opportunities for advancing higher education's core missions of education, research and service in a resource-constrained environment.

Governing PB Universities Globally

Organizations, Regulation and Rankings

Roger King, Open University and London School of Economics and Political Science, UK

This book explores the growing influence of global regulatory governance on universities and national higher education systems. Roger King refers to processes of purposeful standardization, normative internalization and markets as solutions for coordination and collective action problems, as well as hierarchical command. A range of university systems, world models and organizations, particularly those associated with Europe and the OECD are examined, as well as an application of social scientific concepts and models to analyse higher education systems within a globalization framework.

Immigration and the Financial Crisis NEW

The United States and Australia Compared

Edited by John Higley, University of Texas at Austin, US, John Nieuwenhuysen and Stine Neerup, Monash University, Australia and Copenhagen University, Denmark

This fascinating and timely companion volume to Nations of Immigrants examines immigration to Australia and the US during the difficult economic times following the recent world-wide paralysis of financial firms and markets. The contributors – prominent Australian and American immigration specialists – explore how the financial crisis has altered the nexus of domestic labour markets and immigration, how public fears spurred by harder times are affecting border protection and support for immigration, whether serious abrasions between foreign- and native-born populations are being kindled, and the extent to which the politics of immigration are being transformed.

Regional and Urban Policy and Planning on the Korean Peninsula NEW

Edited by Harry W. Richardson, University of Southern California and Chang-Hee Christine Bae, University of Washington, Seattle, US

The potential for reunification of the two Koreas, whether in the short or long term, argues for a comprehensive look at policy and planning issues that encompass the peninsula as a whole. This book deals with spatial policy issues in both South and North Korea in a broad and non-political way.

Part one deals with South Korea, examining cultural changes, the capital city of Seoul, Greenbelt policy, the balanced national (regional) development strategy, and the new mega-regional approach. Part two delves into aspects of development in North Korea, such as the limitations of national statistics, the marketization of the economy, integration with the rest of North East Asia, and the need for a spatial infrastructure strategy. Part three examines the case for reunification in the interests of both the South and North. It argues that a transitional approach would be less costly and less risky than sudden reunification primarily via an early strategy of shifting more capital to the North and later by moderating migration flows to the South.

Housing Markets and the Global Financial Crisis NEW

The Uneven Impact on Households

Edited by Ray Forrest, University of Bristol, UK and City University of Hong Kong and Ngai-Ming Yip, City University of Hong Kong

Housing markets are at the centre of the recent global financial turmoil. In this well-researched study, a multidisciplinary group of leading analysts explore the impact of the crisis within, and between, countries.

The impacts of the so-called global crisis are, in fact, highly uneven for both households and institutions. This unique book investigates why this is the case as well as emphasizing the consequences. It encompasses the experiences of all the major economies, including: Australia, China, Hong Kong, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Japan, New Zealand, South Korea, the UK, the USA and Vietnam, highlighting and comparing a wide range of housing systems and crisis impacts.

Democratizing Health NEW

Consumer Groups in the Policy Process

Edited by Hans Löfgren, Evelyne de Leeuw
and Michael Leahy, Deakin University, Australia

This book examines the important role of consumer activism in health policy in different national contexts.

In an age of shifting boundaries between state and civil society, consumer groups are potentially drivers of democratisation in the health domain. The expert contributors explore how their activities bring new dynamics to relations between service providers, the medical profession, government agencies, and other policy actors. This book is unique in comprehensively analysing the opportunities and dilemmas of this type of activism, including ambiguous partnerships between consumer groups and stakeholders such as the pharmaceutical industry.

Foundations of Social Capital PB

Edited by Elinor Ostrom, Indiana University, Bloomington, US and 2009 Winner of the Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences for Research on Economic Governance and T.K. Ahn, Korea University, Seoul, Korea

'As theoretical paradigms develop, there comes a time when they need careful synthesis, deep reflection and wise criticism. It is now that time for the arguments regarding social capital. Political scientists are fortunate that a scholar as pre-eminent as Elinor Ostrom, and her able student T.K. Ahn, have taken the lead in undertaking this task. They have pulled together a fine collection of essays and added an insightful and pedagogically sound overview. The collection is likely to find its place in the book bags of all scholars concerned with the contributions of this literature to our discipline.'

Towards the Third Generation University

Managing the University in Transition

J.G. Wissema, J.G. Wissema Associates bv and Delft University of Technology, the Netherlands

Universities are undergoing massive change, evolving from science-based, government-funded institutions into 'international know-how hubs' dubbed third generation universities, or 3GUs. J.G. Wissema explores this dramatic change, tracing the historic development of universities, and exploring the technology-based enterprises, technostarters and financiers for start-ups and young enterprises that are the main partners of these 3GUs.

State and Local Fiscal Policy

Thinking Outside the Box?

Edited by Sally Wallace, Georgia State University, US

In this broad and illuminating work, experts on public finance discuss innovations in state and local tax policy that have been implemented or considered over the course of the last three decades. The authors provide original work that analyses whether state and local governments have 'gone outside the box' to deal with the strains of current public finances or have gotten along by adhering to the status quo. This book provides researchers, students and policy makers with evaluations and analyses by well-known scholars in the area of state and local public finance of actual practices and analysis of potential policy changes for the future.

Defiance in Taxation and Governance

Resisting and Dismissing Authority in a Democracy

Valerie Braithwaite, The Australian National University

'[Valerie] Braithwaite merges her considerable knowledge of a wide range of disciplines to produce an exemplar of interdisciplinary research. . . Braithwaite has produced an excellent example of a book that is grounded in the extant literature, while expanding our understanding of the importance of understanding the behaviours that drive defiance. The aim of the book is to "show how authorities can live symbiotically with defiance" and she achieves this superbly, illustrating how improved satisfaction with "the process" can minimise defiance.'

KEY TITLE

A Practitioner Handbook on Evaluation

Edited by Reinhard Stockmann,
Saarland University, Germany

This comprehensive Handbook serves as an excellent reference manual providing answers to virtually every conceivable question that can arise during the planning and implementation process of an evaluation.

Aimed at readers with limited knowledge in the field of evaluation techniques and who want to study further, this volume will serve all those who conduct evaluations themselves, as well as decision-makers who commission evaluations and those who are evaluated.

Edited by Graeme A. Hodge,
Monash University, Australia,
Carsten Greve, Copenhagen
Business School, Denmark and
Anthony E. Boardman, University of British Columbia, Canada

“Partnership” is a widely-used and confusing term in public management. This book pilots the reader expertly through the diverse ambitions for PPPs, and the contexts in which they have been used. It draws on the first-hand experience of politicians and managers in steering partnerships, combined with solid research and observation. A particular strength is the recognition of how PPPs are understood in various national settings, and the scope for international policy learning. The contributors write in a style which is both authoritative and accessible to students, policy-makers and professionals seeking to understand the complexities of partnership working.

*“This lucid, vivid and intelligent book on ‘continuity and change’ in policy and management by Pollitt and Bouckaert follows in the footsteps of Pollitt’s previous book on the issue of time, a vital but often neglected issue. In the present book the focus is on comparisons: Britain and Belgium, hospitals and police, national and local, and comparison over time. Again conceptually rich, this book makes you think. ## Partisan Appointees and Public Servants

An International Analysis of the Role of the Political Adviser

Edited by Chris Eichbaum, Victoria University of Wellington and Richard Shaw, Massey University, New Zealand

This comparative collection examines the role of political staff in executive government and the consequences for policymaking and governance. Included are case studies from Australia, Canada, New Zealand, the Republic of Ireland, the United Kingdom and the United States. The evidence suggests that political staff are likely to be an enduring feature of executive government, which one contributor refers to as the 'new public governance' with attendant risks and opportunities for the conduct of politics and administration.

Economic Advice and Rhetoric

Why do Consultants Perform Better than Academic Advisers?

Onno Bouwmeester, VU University Amsterdam, The Netherlands

This book compares the approaches of consultants and academic advisers and provides an in-depth analysis of their advice argumentation. Both compete on the market for economic advice, with consultants enjoying a larger market share and usually obtaining higher fees. However, academics criticise them for overcharging, shallowness, and quick-and-dirty methods. So, are consultants? clients misled or even cheated? Not necessarily. The book reveals that academics have drawbacks as well; their arguments are less balanced than those of consultants and their estimates contradict each other more.

Public Governance in Asia and the Limits of Electoral Democracy

Edited by Brian Bridges and Lok Sang Ho, Lingnan University, Hong Kong

'The global financial crisis has demonstrated that good governance is not guaranteed by democracy; it has also shown that the capacity of electoral democracies to manage major issues of public policy has varied widely. This excellent comparative collection probes these questions through analysis of ten political systems in Asia, all of which have experienced major changes in recent years. By focussing on the concept of public governance as the key to preventing abuses of power and promoting the public interest, Bridges, Ho and their co-authors have moved the debate on Asian democratization beyond the narrow focus on electoral machinery to the wider issue of governance as the principal means to serve the public good.'

Politicians and Public Services

Implementing Change in a Clash of Cultures

Kate Jenkins, London School of Economics and KJA Ltd.

An insider's view of what really drives public sector management and reform.

'This book is essential reading for anyone who wants to understand why governments fail to deliver what they promise. It is the authoritative insiders account of the 'Next Steps' initiative under Mrs Thatcher by someone who was central to it. Her analysis is uncomfortable but her insights, spiced with some nice anecdotes, are as wise and relevant as ever. Her message for politicians and senior officials alike is uncompromising: look at the job first and equip yourselves to do it properly, or you will fail and the rest of us suffer. Thank goodness she has written it all down. No one can say they weren't told.'

Towards Effective Place Brand Management

Branding European Cities and Regions

Edited by Gregory Ashworth, University of Groningen, The Netherlands and Mihalis Kavaratzis, International Business School – Budapest, Hungary

Many facets of place branding, such as identities, image, promotion or sense of place, have been around for a long time. However, the need to analyse their nature in the context of branding and to examine their relationships in detail has grown rapidly in the last decade or so, as places all over the world have put branding activities higher than ever in their agenda. This important new book examines and clarifies key aspects of the recently popularised concept of place branding, expounding many controversies, confusions and discords in the field.

Transatlantic Regulatory Cooperation NEW

The Shifting Roles of the EU, the US and California

Edited by David Vogel, University of California, Berkeley, US and Johan Swinnen, Catholic University of Leuven, Belgium

'Transatlantic Regulatory Cooperation represents a cutting-edge contribution to the study of economic regulation, and in particular the prospects for cooperation between the US and the EU as the world's dominant economic blocs. The authors, among the leading scholars in their fields, provide theoretically and empirically informed studies of transatlantic cooperation and conflict in areas such as the environment, climate change, food safety, and genetically modified foods, deriving provocative and compelling policy recommendations from each. The discussion of federalism, and the opportunities and constraints it presents for international cooperation, is superb.'

Handbook on the Politics of Regulation NEW

Edited by David Levi-Faur, The Hebrew University, Israel

This unique Handbook offers the most up to date and comprehensive, state of the art reviews of the politics of regulation. It presents and discusses the core theories and concepts of regulation in response to the rise of the regulatory state and regulatory capitalism, and in the context of the 'golden age of regulation'. Its ten sections include forty nine chapters covering issues as diverse and varied as theories of regulation; historical perspectives on regulation; regulation of old and new media; rise regulation, enforcement and compliance; better regulation; civil regulation; European regulatory governance; and global regulation. As a whole, it provides an essential point of reference for all those working on the political social and economic aspects of regulation.

Regulation and the Evolution of the Global Telecommunications Industry

Edited by Anastassios Gentzoglani, University of Sherbrooke, Canada and Anders Henten, Aalborg University, Denmark

After decades of liberalisation of the telecommunications industry around the world and technological convergence that allows for increasing competition, sector-specific regulation of telecommunications has been on the decline. As a result, the telecommunications industry stands in the middle of a debate that calls for either a total deregulation of access to broadband infrastructures or a separation of infrastructure from service delivery. This book proposes new approaches to dealing with the current and future issues of regulation of telecommunication markets on both a regional and a global scale.

Heightening Competition in the Postal and Delivery Sector

Edited by Michael A. Crew, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, Newark and Paul R. Kleindorfer, INSEAD, France and University of Pennsylvania, US

This compilation of original essays by an international cast of top scholars addresses some of the major issues now facing postal and delivery services throughout the world. The European Commission and member states wrestle with the problem of how to implement the scheduled liberalization of these sectors and maintain the universal service obligation while the United States Postal Service is coming to terms with the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act. In addition, the book addresses the impact of electronic competition as well as other problems facing the field.

Corporate Social Responsibility in the 21st Century

Debates, Models and Practices Across Government, Law and Business

Bryan Horrigan, Monash University, Australia

'CSR continues to be one of the most important aspects of business in the global economy – receiving much attention from business managers, government leaders and academics. While continuing to increase in prominence, there are many aspects and many approaches evolving in this global phenomenon. In this book Horrigan provides the most complete interdisciplinary analysis of these perspectives yet undertaken – combining theoretical insights with practical examples while pointing the way forward towards future developments.'

Effective Federalism and Local Finance

Edited by Ehtisham Ahmad, University of Bonn, Germany and London School of Economics, UK and Giorgio Brosio, University of Turin, Italy

Fiscal federalism has been the subject of much scholarly debate over the years. These volumes successfully bring together seminal articles from the past fifty years to demonstrate how the focus has evolved from 'first generation' to 'second generation' theories of intergovernmental relations. The editors enhance the collection with detailed analyses of how competition affects relations between varying levels of government, and examine the hypotheses underlying the theory of fiscal federalism.

Delegation in the Regulatory State

Independent Regulatory Agencies in Western Europe

Fabrizio Gilardi, University of Zurich, Switzerland

'Fabrizio Gilardi's book is empirical political science of the regulatory state at its best. It has data of transnational breadth and depth that is diagnosed in a theoretically sophisticated way. The conclusion is that policy makers delegate in order to tighten the credibility of policy commitments and to tie the hands of future ministers who may have different preferences. This will become a building block for future scholarship on regulation and governance.'

New Directions in NEW Regional Economic Development

The Role of Entrepreneurship Theory and Methods, Practice and Policy

Edited by Sameeksha Desai, Indiana University, US,
Peter Nijkamp, VU University Amsterdam,
The Netherlands and Roger R. Stough, George Mason
University, US

The introduction of endogenous growth theory has led to a new and strong interest in the role of the entrepreneur as an agent driving technical change at the local regional level. This book examines theoretical and methodological issues surrounding the interface of the entrepreneur in regional growth dynamics on the one hand and on the other presents illuminating case studies. In total the book's contributions amplify our understanding of such critical issues as the relationship between innovation and entrepreneurship, the entrepreneur's role in transforming knowledge into economically useful knowledge, and knowledge commercialisation with both conceptual and empirical contributions.

The Innovation Imperative

National Innovation Strategies
in the Global Economy

Edited by Göran Marklund,
Swedish Governmental Agency
for Innovation Systems, Sweden,
Nicholas S. Vonortas, The George Washington University and Charles W. Wessner,
National Academies, US

As a result of globalisation, strategies for investments in innovation capabilities have gained considerably in importance for businesses, research institutions and policymakers. Public policy has to provide conditions for investments in R&D and innovation that are internationally attractive and effective in stimulating innovation, economic growth and job-creation. This book focuses on the changing roles and challenges of innovation and growth policy, and the strategies and measures that are critical in a globalising world. It provides guidance for innovation policy strategy formulations and design of innovation policy measures.

Enhancing the Effectiveness of Innovation

New Roles for Key Players

Edited by Willem Molle, Erasmus University Rotterdam and ECORYS Research and Consulting, the Netherlands and Julia Djarova, ECORYS International

'The tasks confronting European governments intent on innovation will need to shift from simple quantitative measures of how much (R&D, etc.) to how good such magnitudes are in augmenting competitiveness – from quantity to quality. In this book, the editors and their contributors move the debate on to concerns over the effectiveness of innovation. This is not just a matter of making linkages among increasingly diverse players, but of making these linkages themselves effective. The book takes an important step forward for innovation policy at all levels, from regional to global.'

Edited by Henri Delanghe, IDEA Consult, Belgium,
Ugur Muldur, European Commission, Belgium and
Luc Soete, Maastricht University, the Netherlands

'This volume gives an excellent overview of science and technology policy in Europe in the post-war period. Experts with a background in research and policy explain the historical and theoretical roots of the European Research Area. Contributions illuminate the tension between science policy and innovation policy and the difficulties to balance national, European and global priorities. Critical assessments of how the ERA has affected the overall performance of Europe lead to interesting proposals for how to cope with old and new challenges.'

Nuclear Weapons, NEW Justice and the Law

Elli Louka, Alphabetics Development & Investment, US

It is often argued that the nuclear non-proliferation order divides the world into nuclear-weapon-haves and have-nots based on a nuclear apartheid. Employing a careful and nuanced discussion of this claim, Elli Louka explores here the emergence of new threshold nuclear weapon states, transparency standards, and precautionary preemption.

The Handbook NEW on the Political Economy of War

Edited by
Christopher J. Coyne, George
Mason University and
Rachel L. Mathers, Delaware
State University, US

By defining political economy and war in the broadest sense, this unique Handbook brings together a wide range of interdisciplinary scholars from economics, political science, sociology, and policy studies to address a multitude of important topics. These include an analysis of why wars begin, how wars are waged, what happens after war has ceased, and the various alternatives to war. Other sections explore civil war and revolution, the arms trade, economic and political systems, and post-conflict reconstruction and nation building.

Terrorism and Social Exclusion

Misplaced Risk – Common Security

Edited by David Wright-Neville, International Security
Consultant and Anna Halafoff, Monash University, Australia

Recent thinking on globalisation places risk at the centre of contemporary life. Yet what if our perception of risk is misplaced? What if the greatest risk is not terrorism itself but the conditions that allow terrorism to flourish? This fascinating book illustrates that elevated perceptions of terrorism-related risks are having a deleterious impact on many societies, exacerbating feelings of exclusion among individuals and groups. Via their exploration of various societies, the expert contributors show that as a causal factor of terrorism, social exclusion can be remedied by inclusive, participatory and deliberative measures.

Global Business PB and the Terrorist Threat

Edited by Harry W. Richardson, Peter Gordon and James E. Moore II, University of Southern California, US

Global business is affected by global terrorism and the two are intricately linked on many levels. This book is an eclectic and enlightening compendium of research that explores the interrelationships between the two. A companion to and expansion on the authors' previous books on the area, Global Business and the Terrorist Threat takes a closer look at practical business management, as influenced by terrorist infrastructure, networks and actions.

Natural Disaster Analysis after Hurricane Katrina

Risk Assessment, Economic Impacts and Social Implications

Edited by Harry W. Richardson, Peter Gordon and James E. Moore II, University of Southern California, US

This influential book explores the key policy implications arising from Hurricane Katrina. Leading scholars from fields as diverse as decision analysis, risk management, economics, engineering, transportation, urban planning and sociology investigate the policy issues associated with insurance, flood control and rebuilding levees, housing, tourism, utility lifelines recovery and resilience, evacuation and relocation and racial inferences. By assessing the disruption of life in New Orleans, as well as the inter-regional economic impacts of the disaster, the authors suggest steps that can be taken to minimize future risks, not only in New Orleans but all locations threatened by natural disasters.

Robust Political Economy

Classical Liberalism and the Future of Public Policy

Mark Pennington, Queen Mary, University of London, UK

'I really enjoyed reading Mark Pennington's book. Really, really enjoyed it. He nicely blends public choice and Austrian insights, the notion of robust political economy as something that takes into account self-interest, knowledge, and incentives. Pennington expertly highlights the comparative institutional arrangements and the plurality of choices that a system with several property and exit possibilities provides. Uniquely, he discusses how neither straight neoclassical economics nor the Stiglitz variety gets it. This is an important book because it attempts to address the critics directly. It is a book almost custom-made for those who want to defend classical liberalism against the common arguments.'

Human Rights PBConfronting Myths and MisunderstandingsAndrew Fagan, University of Essex, UK

This book offers both an introduction to and a critical analysis of enduring themes and issues in the contemporary theory and practice of human rights.

The author argues that the moral authority and practical efficacy of human rights are adversely affected by a range of myths and misunderstandings – from claims regarding the moral status of human rights as an allegedly fully comprehensive moral doctrine to the view that the possession of rights is anti-ethical to recognising the importance of moral duties. The author also examines such issues as the claim that human rights can ultimately only be said to exist as legal phenomena and the claim that nation-states are inherently hostile to the spirit of human rights. Discussion cuts across academic boundaries in an attempt to defend human rights against those who have come to expect too much and those who expect too little from human rights.

and Developing Countries

A Global Multidisciplinary Perspective

Edited by Peter A.G. van Bergeijk Erasmus University and Utrecht University, Arjan de Haan and Rolph van der Hoeven, Erasmus University, The Hague, The Netherlands

The Financial Crisis and Developing Countries discusses and analyses regional and country specific impacts of the financial crisis in emerging markets and developing countries, covering all continents. Using heterodox and mainstream methodologies, the book develops a multidisciplinary perspective on the crisis phenomenon as it examines how the crisis changes concepts of development, critically discusses the mainstream approach, analyses (global) governance issues (including the G20) and shows the actual impact for the poor and crisis vulnerable.

Peter A.G. van Bergeijk, Erasmus University and Utrecht University, The Netherlands

This book provides the political flesh to the bones of theoretical and empirical work in international trade. It brings together several recent developments in the literature, including the econometric developments in gravity modelling, the emphasis on firm heterogeneity, and the increased attention for political, institutional and cultural factors as relevant dimensions of distance explaining important parts of observed variations in trade intensities between nation states. The book is highly recommended to applied researchers and policy makers interested in the political economy of globalization.

Integration and Security in Asia

A Political Economy Approach

Edited by T.J. Pempel, University of California, Berkeley, US, Jehoon Park, University of Incheon and Heung-chong Kim, Korea Institute for International Economic Policy, South Korea

The prospects and value of economic integration and regionalism in Asia are increasingly evident in what could turn out to be 'the Asian Century'. It is within this context that this important book explores the critical economic issues, security concerns and political themes pertinent to Asia in general, and to East Asia in particular.

'A splendid analysis of how an automotive industry based on mass production has become an alien in our time – where diversity and personalised products and services have become the norm. Peter Wells presents an intriguing analysis of how the automotive industry can find ways forward and re-invent itself. A must read for all interested in sustainable mobility, as well as strategists in the automotive industry.'

On the Brink of DeglobalizationAn Alternative Perspective on the Causes of the World Trade Collapse

Peter A.G. van Bergeijk, Erasmus University and Utrecht University, The Netherlands

'Peter van Bergeijk has written a fascinating book on the recent trade collapse, that in size can only be compared to the (trade) crises of the 1930s. There are at least two reasons to read the book. The first is to get a better understanding why the world has witnessed a dramatic decline of international trade. Peter van Bergeijk systematically analyzes the standard explanations that are given for this collapse, for example those put forward by the WTO, and concludes that most are wrong or unconvincing, and provides his own thought provoking explanation: risk and uncertainty. The second reason to read the book is that it provides all those interested in international trade with a clear and interesting introduction to understand the world of international trade and learn a great deal along the way, and not only about the recent trade collapse.'

Migration and the Globalisation of Health Care

The Health Worker Exodus?

John Connell, University of Sydney, Australia

The international migration of health workers has been described by Nelson Mandela as the 'poaching' of desperately needed skills from under-privileged regions. This book examines the controversial recent history of skilled migration, and explores the economic and cultural rationale behind this rise of a complex global market in qualified migrants and its multifaceted outcomes.

Trafficking and Human Rights

European and Asia-Pacific Perspectives

Edited by Leslie Holmes, University of Melbourne, Australia, Graduate School for Social Research, Warsaw, Poland and University of Bologna, Italy

Human trafficking is widely considered to be the fastest growing branch of trafficking. It has moved rapidly up the agenda of states and international organisations since the early-1990s, not only because of this growth, but also as its implications for security and human rights have become clearer. This fascinating study by European and Australian specialists provides original research findings on human trafficking, with particular reference to Europe, South-East Asia and Australia. A major focus is on how many states and organisations act in ways that undermine trafficking victims' rights.

The Political Economy of Intellectual Property Rights

Edited by Christopher May, Lancaster University, UK

Christopher May – a leading authority in the field – has selected material that provides important insights on the global governance of intellectual property. His collection ranges across a number of disciplines and political perspectives to establish that the political economic analysis of intellectual property is both multifaceted and contested. Professor May has also provided an introduction that will serve as an authoritative and comprehensive guide to the main issues under discussion.

Global Exchange and Poverty

Trade, Investment and Migration

Edited by Robert E.B. Lucas, Boston University, US,
Lyn Squire, Past President, Global Development Network in New Delhi, India and
T.N. Srinivasan, Stanford University, US

'The Global Development Network encourages policy-relevant research from developing countries. This volume assembles some results of this important work, focused here on the influence of policy on foreign trade, migration, and investment and of their influence in turn on growth and poverty in developing countries. Analysis of these influences on particular countries is an essential complement to the large-scale cross-country studies that have become so fashionable. Indeed, this detailed work casts doubt on the generality of some conventional wisdom, although not on the proposition that developing countries can gain significantly from engagement with the world economy. A most useful addition to the policy-relevant literature on developing countries.'

Climate Change and Human Security

The Challenge to Local Governance under Rapid Coastal Urbanisation

Michael R. Redclift, King's College, University of London, David Manuel Navarrete and Mark Pelling, King's College London, UK

The challenge presented by climate change is one that we all face. The populations of the Mexican Caribbean who are the main focus of this book, are confronted with everyday decisions concerning their environment that are similar to those experienced by populations in the urban North. The major difference for the people of the Mexican Caribbean coast is that the evidence of the effects of climate change, including hurricanes, are a very familiar part of life. This invaluable study documents the choices and risks of people who are powerless to change the development model which is forcing climate change in the tropics.

Ethics and Global Environmental Policy

Cosmopolitan Conceptions of Climate Change

Edited by Paul G. Harris, Hong Kong Institute of Education, Hong Kong

'We've had 20 years of government-level conferences at Kyoto, Copenhagen and Cancun, but greenhouse gas emissions continue to rise. Taking a cosmopolitan approach to climate change in this excellent and timely book, Paul Harris and his contributors argue that citizen action is an essential complement to state action. The challenging, unsettling and absolutely vital argument of these high quality essays is that distance makes no moral difference in our globalised world; individual high emitters have a duty to reduce their emissions, wherever they are.'

The International Handbook of Environmental Sociology, Second Edition

Edited by Michael R. Redclift, King's College, University of London and Graham Woodgate, University of London, UK

Acclaim for the first edition:

'Each author writes with a distinctive style, yet the work flows well because the editors selected recognized scholars with outstanding credentials. Academic libraries, especially those serving a strong social science community, will find this work a worthwhile addition. Professors of sociology and environmental studies could use the essays for additional readings and reviews.'

Payments for Environmental Services, Forest Conservation and Climate Change

Livelihoods in the REDD?

Edited by Luca Tacconi, Sango Mahanty and Helen Suich, Australian National University

'Everybody talks about payments for environmental services nowadays, yet we still chronically lack good case studies systematically analyzing the experiences out there. This book fills an important gap by bringing together in-depth analyses of carbon-focused PES and PES-like schemes from three tropical continents. Using a sustainable livelihoods approach, the book convincingly confirms our sound intuition: poor farmers voluntarily participating in PES initiatives worldwide will usually become better off. As forest and climate change initiatives continue to blossom, this irrefutable insight will become valuable.'

Governance for the Environment

A Comparative Analysis of Environmental Policy Integration

Edited by Alessandra Gorja, Fondazione Eni Enrico Mattei, Italy,
Alessandra Sgobbi,

formerly of Fondazione Eni Enrico Mattei, Italy and European Commission – EuropeAid Cooperation Office, Belgium and Ingmar von Homeyer, Ecologic Institute, Germany

The integration of environmental concerns into other policy areas is widely recognised as a key element to achieve sustainable development. It also represents a challenge for the environmental community, requiring not only a new approach to policy-making but also changes to existing policies and their implementation. This essential book presents a diverse set of perspectives and experiences on how to support sustainable development through the integration of environmental issues into various policy sectors.

Environmental Politics and Deliberative Democracy

Examining the Promise of New Modes of Governance

Edited by Karin Bäckstrand, Lund University and Eva Lövbrand, Linköping University, Sweden

*'This important new book provides an excellent critical evaluation of new modes of governance in environmental and sustainability policy. The multidisciplinary team of contributors combine fresh insights from all levels of governance – all around a carefully crafted conceptual framework – to advance our understanding of the effectiveness and legitimacy of new types of steering, including networks, public-private partnerships, and multi-stakeholder dialogues. ## Low Carbon Communities

Imaginative Approaches to Combating Climate Change Locally

Edited by Michael Peters,
Shane Fudge and Tim Jackson,
University of Surrey, UK

'We are faced with the greatest challenge to public engagement since World War Two, and a new discourse of fear – not military invasion but climate change. At the same time most people cannot grasp the scale of the challenge nor what they are supposed to do about it. Good governance requires an informed citizenry who are much more than consumers and customers, but active participants in a new post-carbon politics. Low Carbon Communities helps to set out the political and cultural agenda for the first half of the twenty-first century and, ultimately, the imaginative approaches that are required now to address climate change.'

Varieties of Capitalism and Climate Change

John Mikler, University of Sydney, Australia

'Greening the Car Industry is an innovative book in the Varieties of Capitalism tradition. Its interviews and analysis offer rich insights into why the US car industry struggles, particularly on environmental impact, compared to Japanese and German firms. John Mikler shows that regulatory institutions matter, and how they matter. For the car industry at least, more collaborative forms of capitalism show more promise. Mikler gives us a masterpiece of regulatory scholarship.'

Caching the Carbon

The Politics and Policy of Carbon Capture and Storage

Edited by James Meadowcroft,
Carleton University, Canada and Oluf Langhelle, University of Stavanger, Norway

Over the past decade carbon capture and storage (CCS) has increasingly come to the fore as a possible option to manage carbon dioxide emissions that are currently contributing to human induced climate change. This book is concerned with the politics of CCS. The authors examine the way CCS has been brought into the political realm, the different interpretations of the significance of this emerging technology, and the policy challenges government and international institutions face with respect to its development, deployment and regulation. The book includes case studies of engagement with CCS in a number of developed countries as well as more thematically focused analysis.

The Making of International Environmental Treaties

Neoliberal and Constructivist Analyses of Normative Evolution

Gerry Nagtzaam, Monash University, Australia

In this fascinating book, Gerry Nagtzaam questions why some regimes seek to preserve and protect some parts of nature from development, some seek to wisely manage certain parts of nature for development, whilst others allow the reckless exploitation of nature without accounting for the consequences. Tracking the fate of the three over-arching norms of environmental politics – preservation, conservation and exploitation – using case studies on whaling, mining in Antarctica and tropical timber, this book illustrates how international political battles to shape environmental regimes inevitably result in clashes between these competing environmental norms.

European Foreign Policy NEW

Legal and Political Perspectives

Edited by Panos Koutrakos, University of Bristol, UK

'This collection on EU foreign policy is an attractive one for several reasons: it contains a very nice set of essays on a topic which has loomed large on the European Union agenda for some years, namely the international role of the EU. The chapters are written by a range of interesting and eminent scholars in the field. Most importantly in terms of its distinctive contribution, the book brings together perspectives from law and from political science. This is done in part by including chapters by authors from different disciplines but also by choosing cross-pillar themes and topics such as the European Neighbourhood Policy, EU policy on Kosovo, security and defence policy, as well as more general cross-cutting themes like the idea of "coherence", the position of the EU within international organizations, and the approach of the EU to the international legal order. Each of the individual chapters is well worth reading, and the book as a whole is a useful and interesting contribution to the existing literature.'

The Antitrust Revolution in Europe

Exploring the European Commission's Cartel Policy

Lee McGowan, Queen's University Belfast, UK

'Lee McGowan's The Antitrust Revolution in Europe is a must-have contribution to any serious bookshelf on EU competition policy. In particular, he skilfully fills a gap in the literature on EU cartel policy. The book will be immensely useful to scholars, students and practitioners interested in the development and future challenges of this under-studied area of competition policy. McGowan deftly employs a politics/public policy approach that usefully applies central themes of actors, ideas and policy developments. McGowan expertly combines historical analysis with careful empirical work on recent developments. His investigation of the internationalisation of cartel policy helps to elucidate the future internal and external challenges in this important policy area.'

Challenges for European Innovation Policy NEW

Cohesion and Excellence from a Schumpeterian Perspective

Edited by Slavo Radosevic, University College London, UK and Anna Kaderabkova, Centre for Economic Studies in Prague, Czech Republic

This book uniquely applies the Schumpeterian innovation policy perspective to the countries of Central and Eastern Europe. A broadly defined framework of the science, technology, innovation and growth system underpins the empirical and conceptual analysis of the critical issues including demand, FDI, finance and education.

Edited by Edward Best, European Institute of Public Administration, Maastricht, The Netherlands,

Thomas Christiansen, Maastricht University and European Institute of Public Administration, Maastricht, The Netherlands and Pierpaolo Settembri, General Secretariat of the Council of the European Union

'This excellent book in the series of studies on EU reform and enlargement is not as dry as it first appears. . . The contributors outline the key changes as well as patterns of continuity in the institutional policies of the EU and their research which I feel will be highly beneficial to lawyers, economists and politicians. . . I found the book to be invaluable for postgraduate and advanced undergraduate students of EU politics and administrative science, as well as researchers, practitioners and journalists working in the fields of European studies more widely.'

National Politics and European Integration

From the Constitution to the Lisbon Treaty

Edited by Maurizio Carbone,
University of Glasgow, UK

This book discusses the domestic politics of treaty reform in the European Union, from the failed referendums on the Constitutional Treaty held in France and the Netherlands in May-June 2005 to the entry into force of the Treaty of Lisbon in December 2009.

The Provision of Public Services in Europe

Between State, Local Government and Market

Edited by Hellmut Wollmann,
Humboldt-Universität, Berlin,
Germany and Gérard Marcou,
Université Paris 1 Panthéon-
Sorbonne and GRALE, Paris, France

'This book gives a comprehensive analysis and explanation of social and public services in five European countries. Despite Norway not being a member of the EU, these policy areas deliver a keen lesson in the Europeanization of public policy and the convergence of European states' approach to governance. It is a book that will become required reading on MPAs and public administration/public management courses.'

Handbook on Third Sector Policy in Europe

Multi-level Processes and Organized Civil Society

Edited by Jeremy Kendall, University of Kent, Canterbury, UK

'This book will be a major resource for all those interested in the third sector policy environment in Europe. It is the product of extensive research collaboration, and Kendall has done an excellent job in bringing together the talents and knowledge of key researchers across the EU. There are detailed country based chapters and others exploring cross-cutting policy issues. Kendall brings these different perspectives together in overview chapters which explore, and explain, the developing European third sector policy landscape.'

— Peter Alcock, University of Birmingham, UK

European Multi-Level Governance

Contrasting Images in National Research

Edited by Beate Kohler-Koch, University of Mannheim,
Germany and Fabrice Larat, Ecole Nationale
d'Administration, France

'This is by far the most comprehensive account of the research undertaken on EU governance for almost two decades. This volume offers readers a unique review of the governance literature produced across Europe, and an assessment of its strengths and weaknesses. It will prove indispensable to those who want to make sense of the changes under way in EU polity.'

Europe, Globalization and the Lisbon Agenda

Edited by Maria João Rodrigues, Université Libre de Bruxelles and Special Advisor to the European Commission

The Lisbon Agenda aims to prepare Europe for globalization by updating European policies for research, innovation, competition, trade, employment, education, social protection, environment and energy at both the European and national level. Designed to inspire the new cycle of the Lisbon Agenda until 2010, this timely and significant book explores the intellectual elaboration of the agenda for the coming years. It includes key contributions from some of Europe's leading scholars and will undoubtedly prove a monumental addition to the current literature.
